Hindenburg Sleeps
Important Stork News
What is Modesty
Hear Professor Millikan

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THROUGH MILES of flaming torches Hindenburg was carried to his grave. No representatives of the Hohenzollerns appeared. The United States sent a wreath. The ceremony began with funeral march from Beethoven's third symphony, "Eroica," written in honor of Napoleon. Services to honor Hindenburg's memory were held in various churches here; Governor Lehman sent to the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church a tribute eulogizing Hindenburg as "a great soldier and statesman."

Italy reports that the stork will soon have the honor to bring another little Mussolini to the dictator's household. This delights the Italian nation, and causes more general interest than would the arrival of quintuplets in any royal family. If that new baby inherits its father's qualities, it may play an important part in the world.

It is officially stated also that the widow of Chancellor Dollfuss will soon have interesting news for the Austrian people. Dictators come and go, the stream of babies, fortunately, never ceases, and there is hope in every one.

By the way, papers print a picture of the Dionne quintuplets, and show doctors, nurses, all in attendance, with gauze masks covering mouths and noses. Because of this care and caution the five little girl babies are all alive.

Talking at a child in an ordinary tone of voice, any germs in your mouth are sent through the air, ten feet and further, and germs that adults resist easily are fatal to infants.

The late Dr. Hess, authority on children's diseases, warned mothers against kissing their babies on the mouth, saying that in that way, more than any other, consumption starts.

What is modesty? Ladies go bathing in skintight bathing suits, cut off as close to the top of their legs as is possible, and above their waists nothing to protect them from immodesty but a bandana handkerchief tied around the neck, at the back, and fastened at the waist in front. Nobody objects, although the typical bathing suit leaves 80 per cent of the ladies' superficial area uncovered.

In New York, the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association says women must not play golf in "shorts," or loose trousers, cut off above the knees and "sickeningly modest" compared with bathing suits.

Modesty takes different forms. The Oriental lady used to cover everything but her eyes and forehead, but if you read Montesquieu's lettres persanes you find that did their lords and masters little good. Mohammedan women, working in the fields, cutting roses for the manufacture of attar of roses, wearing only one garment, a skirt from the waist down, at the approach of a stranger on horseback would lift that garment to cover their faces, which must not be seen.

Darwin tells of Patagonian ladies, near Terra Del Fuego, terribly embarrassed, when discovered outside their houses all undressed. They rushed into their houses, fixed up their hair, painted their faces, and came out quite at ease, although still "all undressed."

You have heard from a great many distinguished professors, Moley, Tugwell, distinguished "intellectuals," and many others

MUTILATION OF GIRLS AND BOYS BARED

By Associated Press

Constantine, Algeria, Aug. 8—Constantine is outwardly calm, inwardly seething today as the city prepares to bury victims of bitter Arab-Jewish religious riots.

There is an unconfirmed report that troops have been rushed to a distant city of Algeria, the name of which is not disclosed, where an attack on Jewish houses is allegedly planned.

The battles have spread to towns near Constantine. Military precautions were strengthened after the arrival of Jules Carde, French governor-general, who broke short a vacation in Paris.

TENSE SITUATION

How many deaths have resulted is not known. An official estimate is 27. Most of the victims were Jews. Three Jews were killed and several persons were injured at Ain Beida, 60 miles away. Unofficial estimates are that 100 have been slain.

GIRLS MUTILATED

A correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency after a tour of the city said:

"It will take days before the world obtains a true picture of atrocities during the pogrom in the Jewish quarters.

"Girls have been mutilated, and grey-bearded Jews were stabbed to death and little children put to death with knives.

Executioner Waits Her Tomorrow

Mrs. Anna Antonio, above, convicted of murdering her husband, lost her plea in New York Supreme Court for a new trial. Sentenced to the electric chair and three times reprieved by Governor Lehman, she will die tomorrow unless the Governor again intervenes. She is shown as she appeared in court. She may not tell her children goodbye.

ROUTE PICKETS AT CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge police today routed 50 pickets, 15 of them girls, in front of the Massachusetts Parlor Frame Company at 50 Rogers street, East Cambridge.

It was the major outbreak of the day on Greater Boston's labor front, where half a dozen strikes are in progress.

Excitement, caused by the report that an automobile belonging to Clifford Savory of Lynn, a worker in Malden's Gregory-Read Heel Company, had been blasted to junk, collapsed when Fire Chief William F. Welch and Lynn police inspectors announced that the fire had been caused by a short circuit and was not a strike demonstration.

Lieutenant Robert J. Douglas, Jr., of the East Cambridge police station, said there were no casualties and no arrests at the furniture plant. The pickets complied with his request to leave peacefully.

The strike at the factory has been in progress for more than a week, according to Joseph Mellen, treasurer of the firm.

Mother, 2 Children Reported Missing

Brookline police today opened a search for Mrs. Alice J. O'Neill, 33, and her daughters, Eleanor, 13, and Marie, six, all reported missing since Monday by Mrs. O'Neill's husband.

The husband, Edward F. O'Neill of Chestnut street, Brookline, told police that his wife and daughters took very few personal blongings when they left home Monday. He said he could not account for the disappearance.

Dynamite Stolen, Roosevelt Ride Off

By International News Service

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 8—White House Secret Service operatives, police and railroad detectives today were attempting to trace 50 pounds of dynamite stolen within the past 36 hours from a stone quarry here.

The dynamite was taken from a storage building near the Rochester State Insane Hospital. No trace of the explosive had been found despite the intensive search.

Wether discovery of the theft was the reason behind the reported cancellation of preparations for President Roosevelt to ride the yacht North Star, belonging to Dr. W. J. Mayo down the Mississippi River this afternoon could not be learned from secret service agents.

KILLING WIFE AND 2 AIDES MUST DIE TOMORROW

By International News Service

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Aug. 8—Mrs. Anna Antonio, 29-year-old Albany mother of three children, scheduled to be electrocuted tomorrow night in Sing Sing Prison for the murder of her husband, today was denied a new trial.

Supreme Court Justice O. Byron Brewster denied the application for a new trial, which had been made by Daniel H. Prior of Albany, counsel for Mrs. Antonio, on the ground of newly-discovered evidence.

Only a fourth reprieve by Governor Herbert H. Lehman now stands between Mrs. Antonio and death in the electric chair.

Judge Brewster announced at 10:30 o'clock:

EVIDENCE INSUFFICIENT

Justice Brewster said newly discovered evidence did not give ground for the belief it would have changed the trial court's verdict. He declared:

"I am perfectly aware of the gravity of my decision. I find, however, that the difficulty of its rendition is due to considerations that have no proper place in the stern administration of justice, eloquent and potent as they may be, at the portals of mercy.

"As for me, placed and limited as I am by our procedure and statutory rules, I can not find that the new evidence 'gives ground for belief,' that it would have changed the rendered verdict."

TRI THRICE SAVED

The application for the new trial was made on the basis of an affidavit by Rev. William Brown, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Albany.

He said he was the "unidentified" person who telephoned Mrs. Antonio the night her husband was murdered, and told her that her husband had been injured in an automobile accident.

Governor Lehman has granted

HITLER FACING ECONOMIC CRISIS

By Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 8—Adolph Hitler put aside the role of funeral orator today and turned to the task of guiding Germany through grave problems which enmesh it in one of its most critical mazes since the World War.

The chancellor—president in all but name—returned to the capital by airplane immediately after he had spoken a eulogy at the bier of the late President Paul Von Hindenburg.

WAR TIME RATIONS

Germany's economic situation is grave. A sharp decline in foreign trade and ensuing foreign exchange difficulties have necessitated a program of rationing raw materials which recalls war-time measures.

This, economists say, is bound to result in a curtailment of production and the problem of keeping factories going is imminent.

The financial dilemma was re-emphasized yesterday by the announcement that registered marks would be barred to foreigners living in Germany.

Hitherto foreign diplomats, journalists and business men have bought registered marks at rates varying from 3.80 to 4.05 marks to the dollar. Now they will have to buy ordinary marks, beginning Oct. 1, at the dear rate of approximately 2.50 to the dollar.

The Reichsbank said the move was necessary because of "the extremely difficult foreign exchange situation."

Hitler must move cautiously in foreign relations. Many foreign powers eye with suspicion Nazi methods in Austria, where a threat of intervention looms.

Hopes are pinned on Franz Von Papen as special envoy to Vienna but observers were doubtful he would be able to "keep the door open" for Nazilism.

What to do with some 40,000 Austrian Legionnaires in camps around Munich, close to the border, is a growing problem. They are expressing discontent at Hitler's scotching of their long-expected march into Austria.

One of Von Papen's first missions is expected to be the obtaining of amnesty to permit these men to return. Domestically, Hitler appears strong.

PEACE PACT LOOMS

The plebiscite August 19 to approve of his merger of the duties of Chancellor and President apparently can have little practical effect on the domestic future. Hitler has placed this campaign in the hands of Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda.

"Der Fuehrer" is banking more and more on the conservative Reichswehr, or regular army, to the exclusion of his own Nazi storm troops, close observers hold. This considered an indication of a definite break with his early "radicalism."

This, however, means abandoning many doctrines that have become religion to his followers. The psychological effect on them is uncertain.

Mrs. Antonio Will Be 29th Woman Executed in U. S.

In the electric chair at Sing Sing tomorrow night a dark-eyed young mother of three children will become the 29th woman in the history of the United States to pay the death penalty for crime.

Like all save one of her unenvied feminine predecessors, Mrs. Anna Antonio will be executed for murder.

The only woman to be put to death for a crime other than murder was the first woman executed, Mary Hall. She was hanged in Pennsylvania in 1781 for burglary.

INNOCENT MOTHER HANGED

Since her hanging, 27 women alleged to have killed have paid the supreme penalty on the gallows or in the electric chairs of 10 states. Some have gone to their death in definace, some in collapse. One went in innocence—the most terrible miscarriage of justice ever revealed in the nation.

Margaret Houghtaling was hanged in Hudson, N. Y., in 1817, after being convicted of strangling her baby. Several years later a neighbor woman, on her deathbed, confessed to the crime. Mrs. Houghtaling was the first woman t obe executed in New York, and since that appalling case only seven have paid the supreme penalty in that state.

IN RUTH SNYDER'S CHAIR

Of all executions of women, that o RuthSnyder at Sing Sing on Jan. 12, 1928, attracted the widest attention. A spectacular battle to save her rom the chair was doomed to failurec from the start because of the extreme brutality of the crime she committed—the murder of her husband with a window weight during a tryst with her paramour, Judd Gray.

Mrs. Antonio will be led to the same chair in which Ruth Snyder and Judd Gary died.

When the two men who conspired with Mrs. Antonio in the murder of her husband follow her to the chair tomorrow, it will be the frist time in the nation's history that a woman and two men have dided togeher for he same crime. There have been six occasions where a man and a woman have been pu to death together.

DOUG CHANGES MIND, SAILS

By Associated Press

Nice, France, Aug. 8 (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., despite an announcement earlier in the day that he was going to China, sailed today on the S. S. Rex from Villefrance for the United States.

With him sailed Joseph M. Schenck, film exectuive, who proudly displayed a gold cigarette case as an engagement present from Merle Oberon, new British film star.

Fairbanks, who decided at the last minute to accompany Schenck, indicated they would both return to London within two months for Schenck's wedding, then go to China to make a film with Chinese actors.

Fairbanks has been in Europe for months past.

MRS. ANTONIO LOSES, TO DIE

three reprieves to Mrs. Antonio, and to the two men, Vincent Saetta and Sam Faracci, convicted with her for the murder.

All of the reprieves were granted because of a neleventh-hour statemnt made in the dath hous by Saetta in which he attempted to absolve Mrs. Antonio of any complicity in the murder.

County Judge Earl H. Gallup of Albany, denied Mrs. Antonio a new trial on the basis of Saetta's statement, and subsequently the court of appeals also denied a new trial.

Governor Lehman alone stands between Mrs. Antonio and the death chair, and there has been no intimation from the chief executive that he will commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Antonio's three children range in age from 11 to three years.

With Saetta and Faracci she was convicted of murdering Salvatore Antonio, a railroad worker, so she could collect his $5000 life insurance.

Shame May Bar Her Loved Ones at Death

The scheduled execution of Mrs. Anna Antonio tomorrow night will be the first of a woman in Sing Sing's electric chair since Ruth Snyder, who also killed her husband, died.

Before she dies, Mrs. Antonio will have four farewells to say—to her three children and to her father.

The children are three-year-old Frank, who has visited his mother in the death house, Phyllis, 9, and Marie, 6.

Mrs. Antonio may cling to her previously announced decision to go to her death without seeing her daughters because they are old enough to remember. She said some weeks ago:

"I would rather not see them than have them see me here."

The crime for which the young mother must pay the extreme penalty was the shooting of Salvatore Antonio on Easter, 1932, in a plot for his $5000 insurance.

She hired two assassins, Vincent Saetta and Sam Feraci, to do the killing. They will follow her to the chair.

Originally scheduled to be executed the last week in June, the three conspirators were temporarily saved by a statement of Saetta that he killed Antonio but not at Mrs. Antonio's instigation.

He claimed the motive for the murder was a fight over $75 Antonio had borrowed and not repaid.

KIN OF SLAIN GIRL MAY AID EDWARDS

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 8—Pity, and the life-long friendship of two families may add a chapter to the "American Tragedy" that even Novelist Theodore Dreiser did not use when he wrote the story that had its real life counterpart here today.

The pity is for Robert Edwards, the 23-year-old mining surveyor who confessed to slaying Freda McKechnie, and it comes from the very family of the girl, it is said.

VENGEANCE FADES

There is a deep-seated feeling here that the grief-stricken father and sister of the slain girl may try to save young Edwards from the electric chair.

That is hard to understand, but the violent desire for vengeance attributed to the girl's father, has faded away, according to reports.

None intruded so far into the sorrows of the McKechnies as to put the question point blank as to whether they might aid Edwards, but many pointed to the life-long friendship that existed between the parents of the accused and those of his alleged victim.

SORROW TOLD

The bitterness of the cup the McKechnies are draining was evidenced in the utterances of the younger sister Helen. She said:

"I cannot bear to go into the house. Everything reminds us so of Freda. She and I were like twins. We shared a bedroom and now I wake up see her empty bed. I see the cushions she made, the walls she helped to paint. We will have to go away from here, away from the house in which we were all born.

"Away from our friends, away from our Freda's grave. Nothing can wipe out the horror of the past weeks, and nothing can give her back. Do we want his death? Do we want him to pay the extreme penalty? I do not know.

"Does father want his daughter avenged—That again I cannot tell.

FATHER ONCE BITTER

"When the news first came to us, yes. He would have killed him with his bare hands. What would any father do? Now we are calmer. And Bobby was to him as a son. That is the horror of it all.

"No one will ever quite realize what this is. It is terrible enough, the death of our Freda, but it is the more terrible to think that Bobby, the boy who lived with us, who was in and out of our home all our lives, is the one who is responsible for her death.

NO SIN IN FREDA

"Freda had suffered so. She was a good girl and even though we know she gave herself to Bobby, out of her great love for him, is love such a sin?"

JEWS TORTURED BY ARABS

ing in Algeria occupied the Paris press today.

L'Intransigeant published an article from its Algerian correspondent, which told the story of a Jewish printer who was interviewed in a hospital. The correspondent wrote:

"I saw in a hospital bed a printer named Attali, who had hung to a telephone calling for help until his door was broken in.

THROATS CUT LIKE SHEEP

"He and his wife were knocked senseless with clubs, but his daughter's and his two young boys' throats were cut like sheep.

"Madame Attali was hurled over a balcony onto the pavement and stamped on by rioters.

"In other instances of savagery the victims' ears were cut off and the fingers with rings on them were torn of by the assassins.

"Numerous victims were killed on their own housetops.

"The massacres inside the Jewish homes were carried out with the most revolting savagery."

Le Parisien's Algerian correspondent tell of a Jewish household comprising grandparents, parents and grand children, all of whom were murdered by the marauding Arabs who cut their throats. The correspondent quoted an eye-witness as saying:

WOUNDS IDENTICAL

"The hospital scene was horrifying. The victims were stretch-out said by side in the big amphitheater, still wearing the terrifying expression with which they greeted death.

"All the wounds were identical, the throats being cut in every case. Simple identification tags were attached to the bodies.

"Hundreds of shops were pillaged and burnt and the city desolated as if a cyclone had passed through."

Roxbury Boys Disappear Again

Police were again searching for Anthony Irr, 13, of Brook avenue, and Robert Beers, 15, of Julian street, Roxbury, today.

A few hours after they had been brought back from Providence, the boys disappeared telling chums they were bound for Canada.

Friend Tells Freda's Life

Freda McKechnie, victim of the new "American Tragedy" at at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., had many "lovely times" at Harvey's Lake, New York, where she later was slain, Mrs. Evelyn Edgarton, above, friend of Miss McKechnie says. Arab-Jewish Feud Due to Holy City Wailing Wall

By Associated Press

Perhaps the most uncongenial neighbors on earth, Jew and Arab, are obliged by fate and circumstance to live today side by side in hundreds of cities and thousands of miles of territory in Northern Africa and Asia Minor.

Between them is a dark feud of centuries and it occasionally breaks out in savage riots, such as started at Constantine, Algeria, last Friday.

Fights are fierce while they last. Firearms, torches, knives and clubs are used ruthlessly. No quarter is given, and in every flare-up are instances of barbaric cruelties.

GREAT POWERS FAIL

The encounters usually end when European powers exert military force. This responsibility has fallen by turn to Italy, Great Britain and France, which own or administer under mandates the regions of conflict.

Even the great powers, striking sternly with modern weapons, can not suppress the bitterness. They restore quiet, but do not establish peace.

The fundamental differences are racial and religious. The latest repercussion is in Algiers, but its focal point is Jerusalem.

The wailing wall is an object of veneration to Christians; to both Moslems and Jews it is most sacred.

HOW BATTLES BEGIN

Friday evenings Jews go to the wall and, gazing at the weathered stone, repeat the lamentations of Jeremiah. Frequently prayers, written on sheets of paper, are thrust into crevices in hope of divine consideration.

Arabs, who worship at the nearby mosque, are offended by the presence of the Jews. Frequently the slips of paper are burned from the face of the wall by Moslem torches. If Jews witness this desecration there is a possibility of trouble.

Jews, according to the interpretation of the British government, own the wall. But Arabs own the land on which it stands, and the pavement it faces. Jews must cross the pavement to worship at the wall.

Arabs will not sell their property, and several times the disposition of the wall has been presented to the mandates division of the League of Nations. The involved claims to it have not been adjusted, and it presents a problem of such delicacy that the British government has hesitated to make arbitrary rules governing access to the wall.

LINDY LAW FOR SUSPECT IN ROGERS PLOT

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 8—The Lindbergh law with a life imprisonment penalty, was invoked today against a former chauffeur for Colonel Henry Huddleston Rogers after an extortion plot against the Standard Oil millionaire was balked.

The chauffeur prisoner, John Cavanigs, 26, was arrested and narrowly escaped being shot when he grabbed the butt of a detective's revolver and begged him not to shoot him.

Other officers, misinterpreting the man's actions, were about to shoot when a warning shout from the detective halted them.

The one-time chauffeur, who was discharged when he almost struck a relative of the millionaire's in 1929, was taken into custody as he left a midtown tailor shop last night with a suitcase full of bogus money which had been left there four days ago as part of a police trap.

Col. Rogers, according to the police, received two letters, one mailed July 23 and one July 31. Each warned him to "do as we tell you if you love your wife" and instructed him to leave a suitcase with $10 bills at the tailor shop. Col. Rogers married the former Mrs. Pauline Van Der Voorst about a year ago.

The suitcase, containing $10,000 in false money, was placed at the tailor shop last Friday. Over the weekend the police kept a careful watch and reported that twice Cavaniga entered the shop and asked if a suitcase had been left for him.

In spite of an affirmative answer he walked out both times without claiming the bag, police asserted. Last night, however, he took the suitcase.

Police said Cvaniga confessed to writing the two letters which directed Rogers to leave the money in a suitcase at the shop of an innocent tailor.

The instructions were followed with dummy stacks of paper, covered with about $100 in real bills. Cvaniga was seized by a squad of detectives who converged on him as he left the shop.

Pale and trembling, he grasped the first detectiv's revolver, begging him not to shoot. Other detectives, mistaking his actions for an attempt to fight, drew their own weapons, but withheld fire on a warning shout from the first officer.

In the Police Headquarters lineup today, Cvaniga repeated the substance of the confession made to police last night. As he was leaving the lineup platform he turned to Detective Stephen Di Rosa and remarked:

"You fellows are lucky I didn't have a gun. Some of us wouldn't be here now. Why the hell didn't one of you shoot me? I'd have been better off."

MARY DAVIDSON HELEN DAVIDSON

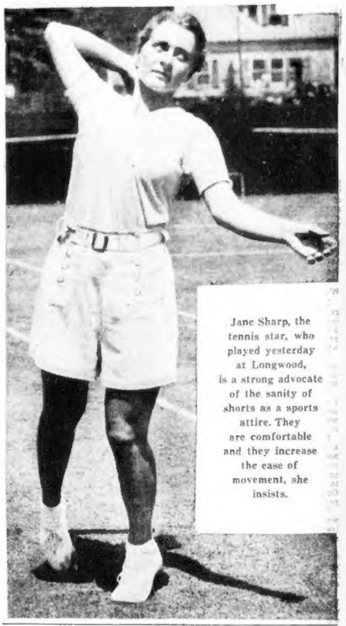
NORMA TAUBELE SARAH PALFREY

Winner and loser, the Misses Sarah Palfrey, Wightman Cup star, of Brookline, and Norma Taubele, of New York, wore shorts at the Longwood Tennis Club when they clashed on the courts. Miss Palfrey, victor in the match, is shown stepping onto the court with her New York rival. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)



Jane Sharp, the tennis star, who played yesterday at Longwood, is a strong advocate of the sanity of shorts as a sports attire. They are comfortable and they increase the ease of movement, she insists.

Girls Will Take Fight for Shorts to Court

The sun tanned legs of this city's fairer sex must not appear unadorned on the public playing fields of this city, but on private courses in surrounding cities and towns the gay colored shorts rule the feminine apparel.

With the result of the Park Department edict forbidding the wearing of shorts, boy and girl tennis players at the Franklin Field tennis courts were planning on banding together to make a test of the ruling. They declared their willingness to carry the issue to the courts.

Just a few days ago Park Department officials headed by Commissioner William P. Long were the center of a controversy surrounding the issuance of bathing suits of the vintage of the "Gay 90's" instead of the ultra stream-lined model of today.

SHOULD BE MORE CAREFUL

The park commissioner, commenting on the ban on shorts, said:

"Women who want to play golf on the public links must wear skirts because it is a city rule and because I think people who play on the public links should be more careful about the way they dress than those who use private links."

In a second breath Commissioner Long admitted that if the style change becomes permanent Boston will fall in line with a shift in the ruling.

But the new era of modesty continued to sweep on. The Metropolitan District Commissison announced that shorts were barred at the Charles River and the Blue Hills golf courses.

Down at exclusive Hatherly Golf Club on the South Shore shorts of varied hues rule the costumes of the fair golfers. The Misses Mary and Helen Davidson, leaders in the younger society sets of Newton, Boston and Cohasset, were among the short-clad golfers on the links.

"There is nothing like shorts for grace and freedom of movement when indulging in sporting events."

At the Franklin Field tennis courts, gentle but final instructions were given to several young women players, who had appeared without benefit of skirts. Then came the threat of a test case.

Private golf courses in the vicinity appear to favor the new costume, while official sanction to the wearing of shorts was given by Miss Francis Stebbins, president of the Massachusetts Women's Golf Association.

Exclusive clubs at Brookline, Winchester and Swampscott have gone on record as having no objections. In fact, the Winchester course seemed most enthusiastic over the idea.

RULING AFFECTS MEN, TOO

As yet, male patrons of municipal courses have received but little word on their status in the dress situation.

It is understood, though, that the old ruling prohibiting the wearing of gym suits on public grounds, applied equally to both sexes.

Meanwhile in New York, Chicago, and Kansas City, the question of shorts, was replacing politics as a matter of national importance.

Miss Beatrice Gottlieb, who gained fame by defeating the Prince of Wales at his own game, said that shorts were the only sensible attire.

MAUREEN WILL OBEY

Maureen Orcutt, leading woman player, promised wistfully to obey the ruling, but added:

"It's going to be hard on those ladies who have reduced their hips or who have secured a beautiful leg tan."

Pointing out the practical, rather than aesthetic reason, Mrs. Thomas Haines, president of the Tidewater Golf Association said:

"When a breeze is blowing we are forced to roll our skirts between our knees and stand in cramped and uncomfortable positions to putt."

Planes Roar Dirge for Woman Flier

New York, Aug. 8 (US)—Mrs. Frances Harrell Marsalis, noted aviatrix, has made her last landing. Her flying funeral cortage arrived at Roosevelt Field from Dayton, O., where she was killed Sunday in the National Air Races.

The big funeral plane was met by three army planes, three navy planes and five civilian planes. Funeral services were held in hangar C. with members of the 99 club, national organization women fliers, among the gathering of 1,000 persons who paid final tribute to the gallant aviatrix.

TRUCK STRIKE PEACE FAILS

By Universal Service

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 8—Prospects of settlement of the three-weeks-old strike of 7000 truck drivers suffered another severe setback when the employers issued a bristling statement declaring that they never would surrender to "Communism."

It would be such a surrender, they asserted, if they agreed to the proposal submitted by the federal mediators, E. H. Dunnigan and Rev. Francis J. Haas.

They did not specify the provisions which they found objectionable, but they have balked strenuously heretofore on the clause which would compel them to hire back without any choice the men who now are on strike.

This would force them, they say, to engage the men who have been most violent in the strike campaign.

Shorts Shorts in Other Cities

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Shorts draw frowns from Miss Winifred Faunce, District of Columbia golf champion, but not on moral grounds. "When you expose your limbs," she said, "you're apt to get poison ivy."

London, Aug. 8 (INS)—The very idea of English girl golfers wearing shorts fairly knocked the dowagers cuckoo today. Shorts, or as they are called over here "panties," have been accepted on the tennis courts for two seasons, however.

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 8 (INS)—The epidemic of woman golfers attired in shorts has not spread to Connecticut, high officials of the Connecticut Women's Golf Association announced today.

One high official of the state said she could see no harm.

Wary Men Let Girls' Shorts Fight Alone

To wear or not to wear shorts?

Be not dec[illegible], dear readers. That burning question that has "putsched" [illegible] off the nation's front pages is NOT decided by any staid group of golf officials.

The sole arbiter of that vital problem, boys and girls, is the possessor of the knees they may or may not reveal.

You probably recall that dear, old classical quotation:

"Vanity, vanity, all is vanity."

Well, it's just as good now as it was 'way back when, according to the oft-quoted "man in the street," who is of the opinion that woman with her reputed wisdom, can be depended upon to don shorts only if she has Ann Pennington knees.

CIVIL WAR THREATENED

Queried concerning the shorts versus skirt debate, which threatens to become a verbal civil war of national proportions, Boston Adams agreed drily that the modern Eve can be depended upon to settle that question beautifully and without any outside help, thank you.

Said Joseph Manny, 102 Nightingale street, Dorchester.

"The ladies, God bless 'em, will decide that question for themselves and to the queen's taste. If they look well in 'em, they'll wear shorts and nobody will stop them. If they don't an edict from General "NRA" Johnson himself wouldn't force them into wearing 'em."

CUBA TO EXPEL U. S. TRIO

Havana, Aug. 8—The Secretary of the Interior stated that three Americans held in jail on accusation of selling arms to Cubans will be expelled from Cuba and deported to the United States today.

He said there was evidence of revolutionary activity against the three men, Frederick Willcox, Arthur B. Needham and "Colonel" Hoffman. Previously the American embassy had interceded on behalf of the men, stating the United States had not requested their arrest.

Needham said he was representative of sugar interests in the United States.

The cattle will be allowed to graze for a few months and then be taken to packing houses for slaughtering. It has been decided to can the beef obtained to aid needy families here.

Boston Woman Is Third in Bridge Touranment

By Associated Press

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 9—New York and New Jersey contract bridge players led 32 pairs that qualified early today for the final session of the men's national pairs championship event of the American Bridge League tournament.

A. Lewis Gotthelf of New York and Charles Vogelhofer of Brooklyn, N. Y., amassed 464.4 match points in the two days' play to lead the upper bracket, while Samuel Katz and Geoge Levin of Newark, N. J., made 425.9 to lead the second section.

Miss Helen Bonwit and Miss Helen White of New York piled up 360 match points to cut the Georgians' lead to 16 points. In third place were Miss Ruth Chase, Boston, and Mrs. Cecilie Guthrie, Columbus, Ohio, with 348.

Unidentified Man's Body in Charles

Metropolitan District police today recovered the body of an unidentified man from the Charles off the foot of Gloucester street in the Back Bay. First sighted by Dominick Emma, of Massachusetts avenue, South End, the corpse was removed to the Northern Mortuary.

The dead man was about 35 years old; 5 feet, 8 inches tall; weighed 155 pounds; had brown hair and was partly bald. He wore blue trousers and a black sports shirt with a blue and white polka dot tie, a green pull-over sweater and sports shoes.

BANCROFT SAYS HIS MARRIAGE PAPERS 'LOST'

Los Angeles, Aug. 8—George Bancroft, in snappy attire, but with a frown on his face, testified here he "didn't remember" marrying Mrs. Edna Bancroft, but "thought" he had obtained a divorce from her.

Asked by the attorney of the woman who claims to be the screen actor's first wife about the divorce, Bancroft replied:

"I thought I had. Do you think I would have brought a girl who is now 17-years-old into the world if I hadn't thought I had a divorce?"

"Well," asked the attorney, "Have you any record with you of your divorce or your remarriage?"

"No. They got lost some place," Bancroft replied.

Bancroft testified in a hearing to determine whether he shall pay temporary alimony to Mrs. Edna Bancroft pending adjudication of her separate maintenance suit.

She charges the actor deserted her and married Mrs. Octavia Broske without having obtained dissolution of the alleged first marriage. She named Mrs. Octavia Bancroft as co-respondent and asked $1000 a month alimony and a division of community property. Bancroft and his second wife are the parents of a 17-year-old girl.

"How long did you and Mrs. Edna Bancroft live together?" asked the lawyer.

"About a year."

"You introduced her to your friends as your wife, did you not?"

"No, I didn't."

"Why not?" asked Hahn in surprise.

"Because I didn't have any friends."

The second Mrs. Bancroft described her marriage to the actor in a Maryland farmhouse, but she was unable to recall the name of the minister or where the wedding license was obtained.

Huey's 'War' Gets to Dodging Stage

New Orleans, Aug. 8 (AP)—The two-shot war between Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley for political control of New Orleans developed today into a dodging match.

One dodge was executed about court orders, citing Adjutant-General Raymond H. Fleming for contempt, which lay scattered on the ground at Jackson Barracks military headquarters, where they were dropped at the foot of a corporal who refused to accept them.

Film Cleanup to Bring Old Time Thrillers to Favor

Hollywood, Aug. 8—"The talkies have moved out of the bedroom into the outdoors."

That sums up the radical change Hollywood has experienced in the last three weeks since the nationwide campaign for "clean" movies brought a strict, self-imposed censorship in the industry.

OLD OPERAS REVIEWED

Adventure stories, melodramas laid against strange foreign settings, historical "thrillers," and even a revival of old "horse operas"—as wild western films are known—now command the attention of the studios.

Among the stars who face a complete change in their story material are Greta Garbo, Jean Harlow, Claudette Colbert, Joan and Constance Bennett, Kay Francis, Joan Crawford, Ann Harding, Mae West, Carole Lombard, Sylvia Sidney, Marlene Dietrich and Dolores Del Rio.

Jean Harlow has been tentatively assigned to "Dolly," the story of a trapeze performer in a circus that tours South America—the foreign land, adventure background.

Norma Shearer has just finished placing on the screen the role made famous on the stage by Katharine Cornell—that of Elizabeth Barrett Browing in the "Barretts of Wimpole Street," the story of the romance between the great poetess and Robert Browning. The theme is historical, the background charmingly Victorian.

MORE NEW ROLES

Next for her comes another chapter from history, the story of Marie Antoinette.

NINE POLICE ON TRIAL AS NAZIS

By Associated Press

Vienna, Aug. 8—Nine members of the Vienna police force went on trial for their lives today before a court-martial, charged with high treason, for particiption in the raid on the chancellery, July 25, which resulted in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Seven of the men, who may go to the gallows before the day is over, are married. One is an inspector and two are surgeons.

The government has placed its campaign against Nazis in the hands of Major Emil Fey, who performed yeoman service for Dollfuss in the suppression of Socialists last winter, and is under orders to wipe out Nazi influence.

To achieve this he is given sweeping powers, including the right to discharge private employes suspected of Nazi sympathies.

The previous minister was recalled following charges that he acted as negotiator for Nazis during the July 25 Putsch.

supporting our "new ERA." Now, surprised, you hear what might be called a "super professor," Robert A. Millikan, winner of the Nobel prize, discoverer of "cosmic rays," attacking the new ERA's "despotism."

He warns you to beware of all forms of dictatorships, tells Americans to preserve "the American dream," says we are spreading in America the "bullet" form of government, so popular in Europe, in place of the old-fashioned "ballot" form of government.

Professor Millikan reminds the public that, under the old methods we had done fairly well. In 1890 there were only 357,800 pupils in our secondary public schools, in 1930 there were 4,780,000 such pupils. Denouncing the "technocracy" idiocy, Professor Millikan asks, "How better could society have used its new found machine-made leisure?"

Professor Millikan, hanging on to his "American dream," wants this country "to remain the land of freedom and of opportunity," with a chance for everybody to go as high as his ability will let him.

However, dreams, even "the American dream," cannot last forever.

Four million, seven hundred and eighty thousand children in the secondary public schools are offset to some extent by 10,000,000 American adults vainly seeking employment. It is all very complicated.

Receiving members of the German Catholic Youth Society at Castel Gandolfo, Pope Pius declared that the German national movement "lacks common sense," and urged his visitors to "continue courageously to practice Catholicism," assuring them that there is no sense to such terms as the German "positive Christianity."

Vincent Pisano, only 20, hired a room on the top floor of a quiet Brooklyn boarding house, retired there with his friend, Oresto De Roberto, 21. Both were racketeers, both were hiding, both were "on the spot." Hiding did no good.

Two gunmen came down through the skylight, shot Pisano five times in the abdomen, put several bullets in De Roberto's head. Both young men had police records, had been tried and convicted and let out.

Organized crime usually "gets its man."

BANKER HUNTED IN MYSTERY

By International News Service

Norfolk, Ct., Aug. 8—Search for Jean Constantin, 30, New York banker, first believed drowned in Doolittle Lake here Sunday with Mme. Denyse Imberti, 28, of Bordeaux, France, turned to woods and nearby countryside today when a coroner's report today indicated the woman, whose body was found in the lake Monday, had no water in her lungs.

Police suspected foul play due to this fact and the additional fact that no trace of Constantin's body was found in the lake although airplanes were used in the search and much of the lake was dragged.

A canoe, partially filled with water and in which the pair had been paddling about the lake Sunday, was found Sunday afternoon and its paddles were found a short distance away. No marks indicating what had happened were found in the canoe.

COMPANY UNION ACTION SEEN BY WALSH

That the next Congress will enact a law that will handle the company union evil, but not destroy legitimte company unions was the prediction made by U. S. Senator David I. Walsh who was in Boston today.

Senator Walsh was addressing the 49th annual convention of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor at Hotel Bradford when he made this prediction. Tonight the convention will banquet its retiring state president, James T. Moriarty.

The National Recovery act, Walsh said, conferred the right of collective bargaining on the workers and gave them the right to choose their own representatives to do the bargaining. He further declared:

"This law only brings the worker to the door of the employer and not inside it. No law can be enacted that will compel an employer to agree with his employes' plans, but the coming Congress will enact a law that will handle the company union evil.

"A bill to this end was proposed last January, but it stirred up so much trouble that President Roosevelt requested it held over until the next session, with he, in the meantime, having the right to step into situations of a serious nature."

Governor Ely, former Mayor Curley and Congressman William P. Connery of Lynn are among the speakers listed for the testimonial banquet to President Moriarty tonight.

Slain Co-Ed's Suitor Held on Doctor's Testimony

By Universal Service

Norman, Okla., Aug. 8—On testimony that Marian Mills, 19, beauty queen at the University of Oklahoma, came to her death from an attempt to prevent maternity, her sweetheart, Neal Myers, was bound over at his preliminary hearing for trial on a charge of first degree murder.

Marion Mills

The girl's death July 10 in the home of Mrs. Hazel Brown, cook in a fraternity house, shocked this college town where Marian was prominent in society and sorority affairs.

Myers had been with her that night, but disappeared after saying that he was going to the university to get further medical assistance. He surrendered a few days ago in Oklahoma City.

Two of the physicians who testified that an attempted illegal operation caused the death of the beautiful girl were Dr. Hugh Jeter of the University Hospital at Oklahoma City and Dr. Ben H. Dooley who assisted Jeter in the autopsy. Jeter said:

"I found no other possible cause."

The physician said Marian would have become a mother in about six months. W. P. Morrison of defense counsel sought to get an admission that death might have been from another cause. In his cross-examination he asked:

"Are you positive that you know the cause of death?"

The witness replied:

"I feel positive on the findings."

Dr. Dooley's testimony was along the same line.

AN IMPORTANT

Announcement

WE HAVE WAITED TO MAKE

DURING all the flurry of the past year of competitive so-called "new" gasolines, the American Oil Company has had a very well-defined policy which has been publicly expressed from time to time:

That when the American Oil Company had a really new and different gasoline—a product that properly justified being called "new"—it would be introduced as such to the motoring public—not before.

The Time Has Now Come

The time has now come for an announcement second only in importance to our development and introduction about two decades ago of AMOCO-GAS—the original special motor fuel, which revolutionized the whole gasoline and automotive industries.

The world's newest, biggest, most modern refining unit has just been completed! It's the American Oil Company's new refinery at Texas City, Texas.

As a result, the American Oil Company is able to offer a brand new, different gasoline—made by a new refining principle. A gasoline as new and distinctive as the world's biggest refining unit and a new refining principle can make it!

This gasoline is now introduced as "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS—to be sold by the American Oil Company as its regular gasoline at regular gas price.

Actually new and different, "New-Action" Orange American warrants your trial. Thereafter, its superior performance can decide your future use of it.

The position of leadership which the American Oil Company has attained in the industry makes this announcement of a new product a fact of major importance.

HULTMAN ACTS IN BRIGHTON'S LIQUOR FEUD

Police Commissioner Hultman today moved rapidly to get to the bottom of Brighton's liquor feud which saw a police captain and a patrolman aligned against each other and a Commonwealth avenue beer garden closed in protest against "the partiality of the police of Division 14." Said Hultman:

"The police department has enough things to do without having a captain and a patrolman squabbling all over the front pages of the newspapers.

REPORTS ASKED

"I have asked Captain John J. McGrath for a complete report on this matter, and I also want Patrolman Charles Brown to make a report in writing."

"After I get the facts I may have a statement to make. There may even be some harsh action. But right now, all I know is what I have seen in the papers."

Brown, the commissioner said, is now on duty in South Boston, having been assigned to the beach patrol for the summer.

The police feud grew out of charges of a beer garden proprietor that police of the Brighton station permitted a rival to violate his license in spite of evidence allegedly gathered by the patrolman.

The complaining license holder is Robert S. Burns of Claymoss road, Brighton, who had locked the doors of his beer garden in Commonwealth avenue, after posting a sign in the window that read:

"Closed until further notice in protest of partiality of police of Division 14."

"POLITICAL PULL" CHARGED

Burns charged that he couldn't do business at his beer garden because police insisted on disregarding violations of the law by a rival. He charged "political pull."

He said further that an officer who accompnied him on a "raid" of the rival beer garden and made note of alleged violations of the liquor laws told him he was afraid to testify before the license board, because "it would cost him his job."

Burns declared that he had been ordered to remove signs from in front of his place, while the rival establishment displays a beer barrel in front of its doors. He says the police countenance sales at illegal hours at the other garden. Burns asserted:

"Baseball fans come in here serve before 1 o'clock. They say they know where they can get served and they walk out to this other place."

Patrolman Charles Brown, now on temporary duty in South Boston, for a glass of beer on Sundays and we tell them we do not was named by Burns as having collected evidence against the rival tap. Burns says the license board took no action on his own complaint.

Captain McGrath declared that he had ordered both Burns and two other beer garden proprietors to remove illegal signs, but that there had never been a raid in the place Burns named.

Neither had Burns nor Patrolman Brown ever presented evidence of liquor law violations, said the captain. He concluded:

"Burns, whose place apparently hasn't been making any money, has been looking for trouble ever since I ordered the illegal signs taken away."

Mother Rushes to Aid Boy Killer, 13, in jail

By International News Service

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 8—The comfort of a grieving mother's arms was to be given 13-year-old Billy Atares today when he appears before Justice William Chittenden on a charge of murder.

Billy is held without bond for killing his playmate, Raymond Wylder, 11, with a shotgun because Raymond "squealed" about a robbery they were involved in.

His mother, Mrs. Roy Kenoff of Chicago, was in Canada when news of the tragedy reached her. She rushed home and today was to go to her son's side. Stunned, she could only say:

"It can't possibly be true."

B'T HE GOT GUN

Before leaving Chicago, Mrs. Kenoff said Billy had written her a letter asking for 35 cents to buy an air rifle. She commented:

"Of course I did not send the money. Billy would not know what to do with a gun. He might have hurt himself."

HE'S SORRY NOW

But Billy got a gun anyway.

The justice asked him yesterday:

"Do you realize this is a murder charge?"

Billy replied:

"Yes, I guess I do. I'm sorry, but I guess it's too late now."

State's Attorney A. H. Breening said the boy, if placed on trial at all, in all probability will not face the death penalty. It was generally believed that the most severe penalty he would get would be a term in prison, possibly on a charge of manslaughter.

CAMPBELL GOES TO ASYLUM

William G. Campbell, 47, formerly of Jamaica Plain, who was found not guilty by reason of insanity of the murder of his 12-year-old son, George, by a Suffolk Superior Court jury, was today committed to the Boston State Hospital for life by Judge John E. Swift.

Immediately upon disposition of the case, counsel for Campbell, Attorney H. G. Smith, announced he would take steps to have Governor Ely and the governor's council pardon the slayer.

Under the law Campbell had to be committed to the Bridgewater state hospital for the criminal insane or to another state institution, Judge Swift indicated that he preferred to send the defendant to Bridgewater.

JOHNSON OPENS APPEAL BOARD

By International News Service

Washington, Aug. 8—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson returned to his office today to see the opening operations of his newly created industrial appeals board.

The board was created to succeed President Roosevelt's "Darrow review board," and, instead of operating independentl yof other recovery activities, will deal with the press through the NRA press section.

The new agency is given a "break" at the outset by Johnson's action in releasing almost a score of different small businesses in communities of 2500 population or less from the price-fixing and some of the other rigid restrictions of the various retail codes.

Like the "Darrow board," which devoted its efforts to the plight of the "little fellow," the new board "decided to assure the 'little fellow' whether he appears invidually or as a minority group a full opportunity to present his case."

Planes Hunt Body of Banker in Lake

Norfolk, Conn., Aug. 8—Two planes flew over Doolittle Lake near here as police and volunteers dragged the waters for the body of Jean Constantin, New York banker, who was drowned in a canoeing accident Sunday.

Disrobe Ban Is on at Beach

Sun-tanning on the sands at Nantasket Beach has undergone a severe setback. Police have ordered that all bathers refrain from lowering their shoulder straps.

This new by-law will result in arrests of offenders if it is not obeyed, Hull police say. Disrobing in automobiles is also forbidden.

MAYOR FINDS MAN DEAD

The body of an elderly man was found by Mayor James E. Hagan of Somerville on the sidewalk in front of 31 Walnut street, Somerville.

The man, Augustine Thornton, 56, of Medford street, Somerville, was pronounced dead from heart disease, when taken to the hospital.

18,000 Knitters On Strike In 2 States

New York, Aug. 8 (INS)—Eighteen thousand knitgoods workers in the greater city and neighboring New Jersey towns walked out on strike today, affecting more than 200 plants. The strike was called after a month of negotiations in which the regional labor board participated. The union was unable to agree on a new contract. The workers demand a 35-hour week.

HEIRS TO LOSE BY CONTEST

A $10,000 bequest, [illegible] if the beneficiaries offer any objection, was disclosed when the will of Fannie Theodosia Scott, late of Belmont, was filed in Middlesex Probate Court. The will read in part.

"I fear that some of my next of kin will be disappointed at the provisions of this my last will, and will object to its allowance.

"I therefore direct that $10,000 be divided equally among such of my next of kin as shall not enter any objection."

ENZO DIVORCE NOW LOOMS

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 8—Rumors that Mrs. Madeline Astor Dick Fiermonte would seek a divorce from her Italian pugilist husband, Enzo Fiermonte, were revived today when it was reliably reported that Mrs. Fiermonte had packed up and left her mansion at Westhampton Beach, L. I., after unexpectedly dismissing her staff of servants.

Fiermonte arrived in Hollywood a few days ago and it was rumored that Mrs. Fiermonte would sail for Paris and the French divorce courts, because of her young husband's determination to seek a movie career against her wishes.

SOCIETY IS NOT even stopping for breath as they leap from shore to shore . . . The next large trek will be for the Cohasset Horse Show on the estate of Mrs. Hugh Bancroft for the benefit of the Children's Sunlight Hospital . . . August 16, 17 and 18 as usual.

MRS. HUGH BANCROFT

This is one of the pleasantest and most informal summer events and draws a large throng on every day . . . The popularity of the Bancrofts and the Cox's is undimmed and they in turn as willingly support and maintain their place in the horse loving world.

We had intended to motor down to the new race track at Narragansett yesterday, with thousands of other optimists to drop a few of our dwindling dollars on Fuzzy-Wuzzy or Boy Crazy . . . But the Fates willed otherwise.

Horse shows are still the most popular sport among the young smart set around New England . . . The Cohasset show is the forerunner of several which take place during the next two months. August and September will see crowds of gayly clad boys and girls driving over the roads to spend week-ends all along the shores . . . Each arriving steamer brings back hundreds of those who left early in the summer for a few weeks of European culture . . . And now the season around our own resorts is in full swing.

The North Shore is particularly gay this week with the visiting yachts in Marblehead harbor . . . There is a dance almost every night at the various yacht clubs . . . Hostesses are planning gay parties aboard and on land . . . And you never hear the word DEPRESSION now no matter where you go.

* * *

Biggest Turncut for Cohasset

FROM THE LIST OF BOX HOLDERS at the Cohasset Horse Show, we imagine it will be the biggest turn-out they have ever had . . . A few of the names noted are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. James, Mr. and Mrs. J. Macy Willets, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain, Mrs. C. Griggs Plant, Mr. and Mrs. Rofer Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettitt, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Harold Tolman, General Francis Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. E. Fred Cullen . . .

Many new names are noted on the entry list . . . The youngsters are growing up and new faces, new mounts are entering the ring . . . We love the odd names given to thoroughbreds, such as Peeping Moon, Rock Salt, Checkers, Melody Casson, Pudding Pie, Batchelor's Button, Tick o' the Clock, King Bourbon . . . The complete list of riders and boxholders will be printed later. It insures one of the most interesting events ever staged at Cohasset . . .

* * *

South Shore Plays Crowded

THE SOUTH SHORE PLAYERS are still drawing large crowds to the Town Hall . . . and let us state after seeing almost all of the summer stock companies, that Cohasset is showing better plays with a more talented company, than any place we have visited, excepting Dennis on the Cape . . . Every play witnessed in the historic old town has been thoroughly enjoyable, excellently acted and smoothly performed.

This week's is no exception . . . We heard on every side that it is the best of all so far . . . One of G. B. Shaw's, "You Never Can Tell," it is vibrant with Shavian wit, meaty and provoking as only he could write of a modern woman's principles as applied to an old-fashioned male . . .

Glimpsed in the throng were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davidson, Mrs. Davidson's sweet in blue lame . . . Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr., the bride dainty as always in pastel evening attire which set off a deep tan and very blonde hair . . .

In light, severely cut dinner dress, Mrs. Channing Cox came in on the arm of Mr. Cox.

Jane Bancroft had a small part in this week's play . . . a character part of a London charwoman . . . Jane's good! She joined her mother, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, after the first act in a garnet velvet frock under a grey cloak . . . It was the coldest August 6 in memory, they reported.

Newlyweds Attended Performance

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM C. COX watched from their usual seats. We saw them later chatting with the newly marrieds, George and Ann (Davidson) Muir over the English honeymoon from which they have just returned. Mrs. Muir was in frilly black . . .

Mrs. Ann Davidson Muir

A charming debbie, Miss Mary Howes, was in a striking gown of red, black and white, most becoming to her dark sparkling eyes and raven tresses . . .

Others noted were Mr. and Mrs. William C. Keen, who have one of the most charming and original homes on the south Shore on the edge of the pond in Cohasset . . . Mr. and Mrs. Menard who are responsible for much of the success of Cohasset activities . . . Mrs. Robert Prouty who is very handsome . . . and the usual crowd of weekly subscribers.

Miss Elizabeth Stone to Wed in Ceremony at Ipswich

AT a very small and informal wedding on Saturday in Ipswich, Miss Elizabeth Ann Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stone of Ipswich, will become the bride of Mr. John Beveridge of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Beveridge of Glasgow, Scotland.

The ceremony will be performed at noon in the Ascension Memorial church by the Rev. Dr. Carroll Perry of Ipswich. Mr. Howard will give his daughter in marriage.

The bridal attendants will be Miss Barbara Stone, maid of honor, and Mr. James Ferguson, best man. Ernest and Webster Stone, brothers of the bride, will perform the informal ushering duties.

A small reception for intimate friends of the bride and groom will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stone. After a motor trip through Canada, Mr. Beveridge and his bride will make their home in New York City.

FOR THE SECOND of the group of teas at "The Lindens" in Danvers, this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon, colonial costumes will add an appropriate touch to the atmosphere of this old mansion which in pre-Revolutionary days saw much entertainment of the gallants and ladies of the colony.

Hostesses this afternoon will be Mrs. Frederick S. Blodgett of Boston and Salmon Falls, N. H., and Mrs. Orlando Rouland of Marblehead. On Thursday, Mrs. Edwin W. Preston of Swampscott and Mrs. Eugene M. Verges of Beverly will receive. Assisting at the tables will be Mrs. Frederic Galacar of Ipswich, Mrs. Samuel J. Newman of Beverly, Miss Gabriella Ladd and Miss Helen M. Mason.

Not only is The Lindens itself a romantic spot, with its stately house and beautiful grounds, but the whole neighborhood is rich in historic association. The road on which it is built is part of the old highway, first an Indian trail and then used by white settlers as early as 1630.

The gayety that was The Lindens in that summer 160 years ago, when Governor Gage and his American wife entertained so lavishly, has been recaptured by North Shore society for the series of teas every Wednesday and Thursday afternoon during August, to benefit the Boston Music School Settlement.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Allen of Newtonville gave a house party over the week-end to celebrate the opening of the new nautical room in their Chatham summer home. A play and recreation room, the new addition resembles in architecture and decorating the inside of a ship. Among the housewarming guests was Miss Elizabeth Smith of West Newton and Scituate.

Today and every day you will find good used cars advertised in the Automobiles-For-Sale columns of the American and Advertiser.

Mr. Grinfield-Coxwell was a member of the First Corps Cadets in Boston, a member of the Ancient and Honorables and the Victorian Club.

POPE FORESEES BETTER TIMES

By Associated Press

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Aug. 8—Pope Pius today expressed optimism over the outcome of the world's economic troubles at an audience he gave 40 American Knights of Columbus, here on pilgrimage. His Holiness said:

"I realize that things are pretty sad in the world, but I feel they will right themselves."

He said he was particularly appreciative of the fact that pilgrims continue to come to Rome from America despite the unfavorable economic period.

The party included the Rev. H. M. O'Connor of Boston and Judge Francis X. Reilly, Washington and Westboro, Mass.

MISS VIRGINIA PHELAN was hostess to about 30 friends on Monday evening at a buffet supper, at Ledgewood, the family home at Smith's Point, Manchester, in honor of her house guest, Miss Elizabeth Scovell of Hudson, New York. Later in the evening the party enjoyed a swim at the Beach Club.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW O.K.'S FILMING OF 'CAPTAIN BRASSBOUND'S CONVERSATION'

W. A. Brady Urges His Wife, Grace George, to Come to Filmland for Role

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1934, Universal Service Inc.)

Los Angeles, Aug. 8—The reluctant G. B. Shaw has given his approval to Grace George to make a motion picture of "Captain Brassbound's Conversation." Her husband and chief adviser, W. A. Brady, will urge Miss George to come to Hollywood and film the Shaw play, as well as J. M. Barrie's "Legend of Leonora," in which she will star on the stage this coming season.

Louella O. Parsons

Furthermore, W. A. Brady will put in a hurry call for the New York stage producers the moment he reaches New York. He wishes to organize and to urge these men to produce their own plays. It has been talked of before by Sam Harris and others, but perhaps this time it can be put over. The more and the better pictures are the merrier.

* * *

We have all heard about the London play, "The Old Folks at Home," starring Marie Tempest. It's a hit—so much so that Darryl Zanuck bought it a few weeks ago when he saw it on the English stage. William Goetz received a cable from Zanuck today saying that the play, by H. M. Barwood, author of "Cynara," would be one of the first Twentieth Century productions after he reaches Hollywood. Arch Selwyn and Harold Franklin have the American stage rights and they will produce it in Manhattan this fall.

Avalanche of Old Plays

What an avalanche of old plays and old stories. "The Nest," a sweet story by Rupert Hughes, which, in its day, was a honey, is about to be resurrected by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The two old people who figure in this homespun yarn of sweetness and light will be played by two of the most popular members on the MGM lot. May Robson, grand person and a fine trouper, and Lionel Barrymore, who hasn't given a bad or even an indifferent performance in all the 25 years he has been on the stage, play the leads.

* * *

Anita Louise

The censors will find that "Du Barry" has been made into such a sprightly gay comedy that much of the naughtiness is subtly covered with amusing situations. The production is spectacular, the sets are gorgeous and Dolores Del Rio is a very beautiful siren of the French court. Louis the fifteenth, the grandfather of Marie Antoinette's husband, is played by Reginald Owen and he is magnificent. You will like Anita Louise, too, as Marie Antoinette.

Warners have done themselves proud on this picture, really, and it's well worth seeing. The critics saw it today at a special preview.

Chatter in Hollywood

Handsome Enzo Fiermonte, former light heavyweight champion of Italy, is here to talk, not fights but pictures. He has for his adviser Adela Rogers Hyland, who knows all about pictures, and she will give him the benefit of her knowledge. Fiermonte, who married the very rich Mrs. William Dick, mother of young John Jacob Astor, is eager to become a movie actor. Adela has taken a house at Malibu and will stay here two months with her two boys. She will write the continuity for a picture or two and continue her magazine contracts. Meanwhile, Paramount is reported as interested in Fiermonte.

Scandal! Shirley Temple has vamped the Governor of California. He so fell for the young lady's charms that he held her on his lap and kissed her. Shirley's back now and she isn't saying a word about the Governor's infatuation on account of she is thinking about work. She has been away from Hollywood for three weeks and will begin work on "Bright Eyes," her next picture.

Snapshots of Hollywood

Marlene Dietrich

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: DOROTHY PARKER and the juvenile husband, ALAN CAMPBELL, headed for Hollywood; Dorothy plans to descend upon the studios to get her actor-spouse a job . . . She herself has been such a temperamental girl, clever as she is, she will have to reform to get herself on the payroll. . . Out in the open, with the trees and shrubs for a stage setting, the uplifters produced "The Wolf" . . . EUGENE WALTER, veteran author, taking a bow on "The Wolf," the first play ever written by him...TOM MOORE and JACK MULHALL giving corking performances, were cheered to the echo; WALTER McGRAIL, the villain, hissed... MARLENE DIETRICH buying luncheon for the CHARLES LAUGHTONS and JOSEF VON STERNBERG at the Paramount commissary. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Knee Dimples Shimmer Through New Slit Shorts

BY JANE EADS

(Copyright 1934, by Universal Service Inc.)

Paris, Aug. 8—Slits in skirts are getting higher and higher and the fancy petticoat is having a chance to show itself after all these years. Not only petticoats but brightly colored taffeta ruffled panties often are visible through the more daring slits

In many cases, however, nothing can be seen except a pair of silken legs through which knee dimples shimmer.

At Worth's collection many afternoon and evening gowns were daringly slashed half way up the thigh and even a number of tweed sports suits were slit to above the knee

Such petticoats as were worn, however, were of the most gossamer of chiffons, so that the effect was practically the same, if not more so.

One velvet evening gown was slashed every three inches around the hem, forming mere strips to the knee, while underneath was a finely pleated chiffon skirt, through which two pretty legs were visible.

A white wool jersey ankle-length gown was split on both sides to the knees, revealing a ruffled tulle petticoat. A black gown slit in back was worn with a wicked shadow lace petticoat.

Fay Again Probes Rudy's Bank Roll

New York, Aug. 8 (INS)—Going into their act for the steenth time, counsel for Fay Webb Vallee were to apply today in Supreme Court for an order requiring Rudy Vallee to reveal how much his singing and baton wielding replenished his bank account in April, 1933.

It was in that month the maestro signed a separate agreement wherein he promised to pay $100 a week. Fay contends that $100 isn't enough and that Rudy can afford more.

New Opening at Keith's

Announced as the new attraction at the Keith Memorial Theatre is "One More River," which is scheduled for its first showing in Boston tomorrow, advancing the customary change of program from Saturday.

Starring Diana Wynyard, the screen play is from the novel by the late John Galsworthy, the last of his famous Forsyte Saga, and for its production a distinguished cast has been assembled.

Barrymore in Tremont Film

"Counsellor at Law," with John Barrymore contributing one of his outstanding performances in the title role, is featured on the screen today and tomorrow at the Tremont. Bebe Daniels appears in the cast of the strong story adapted for the screen from the Elmer Rice play.

On the same program for the mid-week bill is "The Power and the Glory," with Spencer Tracy and Colleen Moore in the leading roles.

Groucho to Star in "Legitimate"

Lakewood, Me., Aug. 8—Groucho Marx in a serious production! And alone!

It's true. Groucho, he of the four Marx brothers, appears next week as guest star with the Lakewood summer theater players in "Twentieth Century," which was produced a season ago in New York. Rehearsals are under way.

Foreign Film Stars, in Early Days, Appeared Here on Screen Unheralded

By ANN AMES

A Hollywood-minded public learns about stars long before they see them. The building up process is conscientious, costly and inevitable. Yet it may surprise you to learn that long before the ballyhoo boys have broadcast their charms, many of the film favorites who bring tears to your eyes, laughter to your hearts and money to the box-office have modestly made their Boston debuts on the screen at the Fine Arts Theater.

In the days before Marlene Dietrich was ever heard of this side of Berlin, she appeared unheralded and unsung (at least in the million dollar manner) in "Manon Lescaut" at the little Back Bay house of foreign films. Herbert Marshall and Edna Best appeared there in British films long ago.

Anna Sten, with more eyebrows and less eclat, played Grushenka in the German film version of "The Brothers Karamazov." Lilian Harvey, Elizabeth Allen, Conradt Veidt, Dorothea Wieck, Olga Tchekova, all played in foreign films at the Fine Arts before contracts and coin led them to our own West coast.

Two of the newest California recruits are Peter Lorre, just signed with Columbia Pictures, who created in masterly fashion the role of the child murderer in "M," and Frank Lawton, featured in Diana Wynyard's starring picture, "One More River," opening at Keith's tomorrow.

You've heard of lots of things being blind, including love and three pigs. But have you ever heard of blind dancing girls For the big finale of the first act of "Life Begins at 8:40," every girl had to be completely blindfolded. They learned their routine first, with their big eyes wide open, and then rehearsals were held with handkerchiefs tied tightly 'round their pretty foreheads so they couldn't see a thing.

One of the founders and guiding spirits of the Actors' Dinner Club in New York is Selena Royle, who is Mrs. Earle Larimore. Thousands of meals have been provided for actors and actresses who have been in need during the past three years.

Furthermore, there's now a floor show every night, and the waiters, cashiers and bus boys who keep everything in working order are actors and actresses temporarily out of work. Mr. and Mrs. Larimore are appearing as guest stars in "The Second Man," with the Beach Theatre at West Falmouth.

CUCUMBER AND ORRIS LOTION HAS A MULTITUDE OF BEAUTY USES

Given in Marriage

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 109

Madge and Lillian open verbal battle with Philip Veritzen to save for the lovers their own plans for a wedding trip.

SO PHILIP VERITZEN had seen behind the cheerful mask which Mary and Noel had drawn over their real feelings when he outlined his munificent and elaborate plans for the honeymoon. I had hard work to keep from staring at my mother-in-law in patent panic, as this realization came to me from what she had just said; but I knew that whatever else happened, she must be quieted. The situation was delicate enough already, without the injection of her imperious will into it—a contingency by no means impossible should her anxiety triumph over her fatigue.

"I will go directly to Mary," I promised quickly, "but I am sure Mr. Veritzen must be mistaken. I think they're very much thrilled at the prospect of the new car, and Mary's fur motor coat, and the big check, and the extra time and everything."

"Everything except the plans he has made for their time," she said. "Don't try to draw any wool over my eyes, Margaret. I'm too old and experienced a woman. You see to it that Mary comes to her senses and pretends to like those plans, even if she loathes them."

A PROMISE FROM MARY

I wondered what my mother-in-law would say if she knew that Mary and Noel were ready to flout Philip Veritzen's plans, to return his check and refuse his gifts, rather than to sacrifice the precious five days of honeymoon for which they had made plans known to no one save themselves.

"I'll get hold of Mary before the coffee is served," I told her.

"See that you do," she called after me. "Come up the first thing in the morning and tell me how it turns out. I'm too tired to hear anything more tonight. H-m-m. This hot milk is good!"

I left her sipping the hot milk and nibbling her crackers, a fatigued but indomitable old figure, and went down stairs, fulfilling my promise in part by a whispered word to Mary.

"Promise me, darling, that, no matter what happens, neither you nor Noel will say anything to his father about your objections to his honeymoon plans for you."

Her eyes widened as she looked up quickly at me.

"But, Auntie Madge, won't that be too late?" she expostulated.

"Not if you get hold of him early enough," I countered. "But I really want your promise, before Mrs. Underwood and I talk to him. We are planning to see him right after coffee."

"Oh! You know we'll promise you anything Noel and I," she said warmly, and I went on into the kitchen, where Lillian was putting the finishing touches to the coffee trays.

LAYING THE PLANS

"I'd rather the old boy hadn't suspected anything," she said. "He's had time to begin to feel injured because of the fancied slight to his plans. Let's get some of this coffee down him as soon as possible, and I'll tip the wink to Harry to get the Dicky bird away from the battlefield as soon as possible. Your father will disappear as soon as he's had his coffee, and you can be very sure Noel and Mary won't be in evidence, so we can tackle Phil with no innocent bystanders in the offing."

Her plans functioned smoothly. While she dominated the conversation without appearing to do so, as she alone knows how to do, it came about that she, Philip Veritzen and I were left alone before the fire in the big living room. She adroitly kept his coffee cup replenished, and when he finally shot a startled glance at the mantel clock, he was in the distinctly mellow mood which good coffee mantled by thick cream always gives him.

"Do either of you realize what time it is?" he asked.

"I, for one, don't care," Lillian retorted. "I have something to say to you."

He caught her nonsensical cue and tossed it back.

"To me?"

"Yes, to you. I have something to say, and it concerns a great favor I want you to do Madge and me."

"UNGRATEFUL CHILDREN"

"My dear Lillian!" he said. "You know that anything within reason is yours, 'to the half of my kingdom'."

"That's just it," she said laughing. "I'm afraid you'll think there's no rhyme nor yet reason in what we're going to ask you; but it's something we want very much, nevertheless."

He looked from her face to mine.

"For yourselves?" he asked.

I felt the answer drawn from me by his suddenly probing eyes.

"No," I admitted, "but——"

He made a sudden, impatient gesture.

"I thought so," he said. "Those ungrateful children——"

"Hold it!" Lillian admonished, jumping to her feet and putting her hands upon his shoulders. "Nobody has said anything to anybody. This is just something we've doped out by ourselves, and if ever you were young in your life, and if you ever loved either or both of us, as you so often have protested, you'll listen to us now."

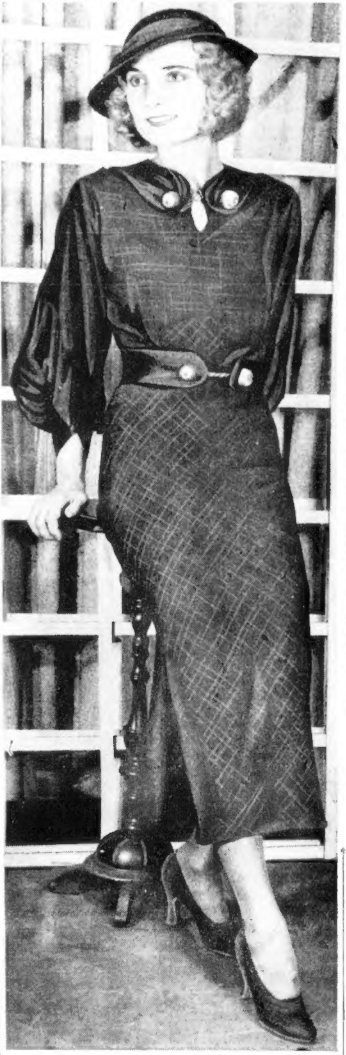
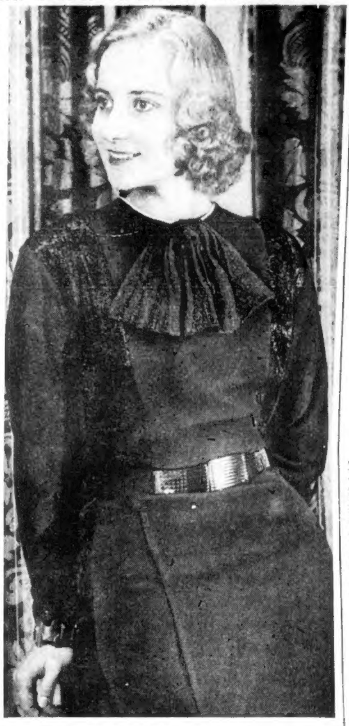
Metal and Cellophane Lend Glow to Dark Fabrics



BLACK sheer wool with a fine tracery of gold threads in plaid design for the going-places Fall frock with enough decorum to attend a serious, early-morning lecture, enough sparkle for a gay tea-time, and enough dress-up feeling for a theater evening. Gold bobbins hold the neckline and belt together, and satin ripples sleekly at the sleeves, full and draped at the elbow. You'll wear it some tangy day soon, and next March it will still be in active, cheerful service. Janet Sprague Treat, who played the lead in Mrs. Larz Anderson's newest play, "Freedom," models both of the new Fall frocks shown.



CELLOPHANE gives the light touch to a dull-surfaced mossy crepe on simple lines, with a cloister-touch of white edging the throat line. It has a soft sheen all its own, not the hard glitter of sequins or beading. In a frock like this, you feel the first exhilaration of Fall. The cellophane suavely follows the blouse line, touches the wrists, and makes a bow under the chin. An unusual gold belt buckle extends across the front.

For information on either frock illustrated, phone Annice Brink, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Receptionist Needs Poise

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Within the last few days I have been given the position of receptionist in quite a large company. As this is my first effort at this type of work, I am rather vague as to the correct approach to my visitors. Outside of a few general facts I was given no information as to what is expected of a receptionist. Can you help me?

G.

As receptionist you are given a splendid opportunity to show the interesting combination of social graciousness and professional competence that this kind of position so exceptionally demands.

In meeting the people who come to you to be received, you can show all the qualities that most of us would like the opportunity of showing: Tact, finesse, cleverness, discretion, poise, savoir faire, skill in saying enough and never too much, adroitness in handling any situation, the power of making people feel that they are being given every consideration, courtesy in dismissing people who must be dismissed, or in giving special attention to people who have special problems that your intuition and experience tell you are important to your company.

Reticence of Opportunity

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Those who do not realize the reticence of opportunity and its tendency to knock only once at a given door should take up Contract Bridge. In fact, it might not be a bad idea to include it in the curricula of the schools, purely for its value in illustrating some of the ancient axioms. In a great many hands the Declarer must either seize a single opportunity by the forelock or be fixed.

Take for example the hand below, played by South at a contract of three notrump.

East, Dealer.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass
Pass

West's opening lead was the diamond Five. East played the King and the Declarer quite properly held up his Ace until the third round of the suit. He realized that he had two possible suits which could be established. Four or five heart tricks could be set up, depending on the location of the heart King, or three or four club tricks, depending on the location of the club Queen.

Since the heart finesse was to be taken into the East hand, which was not dangerous, South decided to tackle that suit immediately. He led the Queen and the East player did not take the King on the first round. The Ten was now led and when West played low it was overtaken by Dummy's Jack; but this time East took his King and promptly returned a low club. South, of course, did not know at this point who had the club Ace and who had the club Queen, but he made the correct play, which was to go up with the King. He knew that if he played low and West held either honor all would be lost, and he further reasoned that by going up with the King he would reduce the chances of the West player's getting in by exactly one-half.

When South's club King held the trick, South knew that the East player originally held the club ace, the diamond King-Jack and the heart King, and he decided that if East had held the spade Queen in addition, he probably would have opened the bidding. For this reason South decided to play West for the spade Queen. He very boldly played the Ace of spades and then a low spade, finessing the Jack in Dummy.

Fryers Now at Height of Season

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

A CHICKEN in every pot was the cure-all prescribed by a king for the happiness of his people. It still is a pretty good motto, particularly now at the height of the chicken season. Of course, with the modern refrigerators it is possible to have all types of chicken the year round. But we do think of these months as being the best for broilers and fryers.

The different classes of poultry are: Broilers, which weigh one to two and one-half pounds, and are in the market from April to July; fryers, two and one-half to three and one-half pounds, available from June to September; roasters from three and one-half to six pounds, plentiful from September through January.

BAKED SPLIT BROILERS WITH DRESSING

3 1½-lb. broilers
¼ cup vegetable fat
2 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ cup chopped nuts, walnuts or almonds
¼ cup milk
1½ cups stale bread crumbs
1 tbsp. minced parsley
1 tbsp. minced onion
½ tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Singe, clean and split the broilers. Sprinkle with flour, dust with salt and pepper and dot with vegetable fat. Place on an oiled broiler and broil slowly on both sides until tender, about 40 minutes. Combine the remaining ingredients. Ten minutes before the chickens will be done fill the cavities and finish cooking. Serve half a broiler with its dressing for each portion. Serve with potato balls and any green vegetable in season.

All Around Help in Soothing Wind or Sun Burn, Also Cleans and Bleaches

(POSED BY KAY FRANCIS)

By Juliet Shelby

IF YOU COME in with a sunburned or windburned skin after a rollicking day out of doors, do not immediately wash it with water. That is ruinous to the texture of the skin and leaves enlarged pores in its wake.

Instead, freshen and cleanse your skin with a rich, creamy lotion (the name of which I can give you) that is made of cucumbers and orris. A lotion that eases the tense, parched feeling of the nature-kissed skin and serves as a mild bleach to boot. It banishes your heightened color and leaves the skin soothed and refreshed.

* * *

It is a blessing to the girl with a partly dry and partly oily skin. She should use it for cleansing, bleaching, and as a powder base if she needs one.

* * *

The dry skinned girl should use it as a protective foundation before any exposure to the sun. It preserves the natural skin oils and holds powder for hours.

* * *

Oily skins that require an occasional cream cleanser will delight in it. Cucumbers are astringent, and remove all traces of excess oil without robbing the skin of what it needs. And if left on once or twice a week, it serves as a mild bleach.

* * *

A delightful, soothing, cooling skin lotion with mild bleaching properties—a sort of lotion you want to have on hand when you week-end, or when you begin to banish the effects of your summer's fun. It does marvels for shoulders, arms and hands if left on overnight for a week or two.

* * *

You may learn the name of this unusual skin lotion and where it is sold by phoning Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Pandora Tells You

DEAR PANDORA:

When I married I was weighted down with congratulations—she was beautiful. Furthermore, she was as sweet as pie for, as a matter of fact, I was considered a pretty good catch and I am not a bad fellow at all, anyway. There was some talk of my marrying below my station, although I am sure I don't know what my station is on life's 5:15. Anyway, she was really rather grateful, I might say, when I proposed.

In recent years, things have not been so fortunate for me, financially, and I have learned the meaning of "familiarity breeds contempt." For some reason, my once doting wife has come to the belief that she can say anything in the world, however insulting and unpleasant, to me and expect me to take it. It has really aided in putting me down, affecting my confidence in myself, etc. Were I a young man again I can assure you I would never marry. J. L. D.

DEAR J. L. D.:

Your's is not the first letter I have had which had as its basis the inconsiderate conduct of wives in the face of human misfortune in recent troubled years. Any quarrel in a home has nothing but ill result as an aftermath. You were the "person of station" in the first instance and I urgently suggest that you greet the insults with the silence that—more than any response—may bring your once beautiful, but more recently bitter, helpmate to a realization of her obvious flaws.

PANDORA.

Lotion Firms Muscles

Question: After the birth of my son, my bust shrank from its normal thirty-four to a size thirty-two. How can I rebuild it and overcome the sagging?
T. H. L., Haverhill.

Answer: As you are young, it may be that your bust will gradually come back to normal. Use plenty of cold water on your bust. Use also a solution of strong camphor and pure alcohol in equal parts—this is astringent and firming in quality. A well fitting brassiere will help, too—not too tight, but well-fitting.

MAD MILLIONS

SYNOPSIS

Success crowned every venture of Jasper Ingram, wealthy promoter. Millions were at his disposal much to the envy of Homer Alspaugh, his confidential secretary, who has all he can do to meet mortgage payments and the gold-digging demands of his flirtatious wife, Marian. Cathleen McCarthy, beautiful young stenographer, substitutes for Ingram's secretary while the latter is on vacation.

By CHARLES GRANT

CHAPTER II

Cathleen picked up her notebok and several sharpened pencils and made her way to Mr. Ingram's office. She had only half-a-dozen fleeting glimpses of Jasper Ingram so it is not surprising that now her heart beat fast, and an attractive tinge of color dyed her cheeks.

Yet she was neither daunted nor distracted by the magnificence of his private office, which was furnished like the library in a rich man's home. It had paneled walls, with oriental rugs on the floor, and an open fireplace, naturally not in use on this August day. The air in his office—as indeed on this entire floor—was cooled and conditioned; closed windows and the height above the street gave the room an almost uncanny quiet.

Cathleen's eyes went straight to the face of the man who, to her surprise, rose to greet her before motioning her to her seat and starting to dictate.

THE MIGHTY INGRAM

"So this is the mighty J. H. Ingram I'm near enough to touch if I leaned forward . . . I suppose he has more power than anybody in this whole country, after maybe the Rockefellers and the Morgans and the Mellons. More power than most kings, he has lots more. Wouldn't I like to see that place of his out on Long Island . . . Even the pictures in the Sunday papers were like a dream . . . Any king would be proud to live there . . . He has a nice voice, rich and human . . . Is he good-looking, I wonder?"

Covertly, she studied his head. It was large, virile, enigmatic. With its strong rough-hewn features, its many planes of cheek and chin, it was removed so far as possible from the simplicity of the Greek pattern. There was voltage behind the brown eyes. The mouth, broad-lipped and not insensitive, was the most revealing feature of the face.

What was this now he had just said? Not sixty million dollars! Surely she should ask him to repeat that—but before she could speak he again, clearly and unhurriedly, mentioned the sum.

"Sixty millions!" she thought with a mental gasp. "There isn't that much money in all the world." For a moment she was near to nervous laughter, with the absurdity of her situation. But in a moment she recovered herself, and carried on, her thoughts taking a new direction.

Sixty million dollars! But that wasn't the man's fortune; that was only some spare change he'd asked some bankers for last week, because he thought he could use it, and they'd stepped up and said, "Certainly, Mr. Ingram. And if you want more let us know."

GETS $30 A WEEK

Sixty millions! With one person in four out of work all over the country, with every dollar in existence thirsted for and fought for by a hundred competitors, with bank failures and bankruptcies and mortgage foreclosures on every hand.

Sixty million dollars! And she with thirty dollars a week to support a home! Her father hadn't earned anything in years. Her mother, to Cathleen's distress and over her protest, did the washing for two prosperous neighbors. Mrs. McCarthy always spoke of this as a temporary expedient, a stop-gap until Joe, her eldest, should find the opening worthy of his talents.

Cathleen, however, knew Joe, with the searching sorry knowledge that only a sister has of a brother. Even if, by a miracle, Joe overcame his reluctance to work and a job within his capacity was offered him at the improbably large salary that alone would induce him to accept it, she could not delude herself with the belief that his family would profit . . .

There were bills that they were behind with, there were a hundred and one things wanted for the house, and every McCarthy of them—with the exception of Joe, ever mysteriously natty—needed new clothes.

Yet, poor as she was herself, there was a certain thrill, and a laugh, too, to be got from merely taking down letters about all that money, all that real money representing all that power.

What couldn't she do with a hundred and twenty dollars, such a tiny bit, out of those sixty million! An instalment on the butcher's bill and the electric bill, the dental plate that her mother needed, a new overcoat for father against the coming winter and the good cloth in his old one made into a coat for Aloysius. Shoes for Frank. Perhaps—if it ran to it—three new pairs of silk stockings for herself that she so badly needed—

"ALL FOR TODAY"

"That will be all for today," Cathleen was caught back from her speculation by hearing Ingram say. "Let me have those as soon as you can, please."

* * *

The afternoon was half over when Marian Alspaugh entered the outer office. Even she did not dare invade her husband's cubby-hole opening upon Ingram's sacred privacy, but she radiated authority and privilege as she asked the girl at the switchboard to tell Mr. Alspaugh she would like to see him.

Marian would have been a conspicuous figure at a race-track or in a fashionable restaurant at the tea-hour. In this business office, as she fluttered about, refusing a seat in order to be the better seen, she drew all eyes, and knew it. She was wearing an all but backless yellow linen dress. It was a costume designed to be completed for town wear by a short jacket.

But, though the day was not excessively warm, Mrs Alspaugh was carrying the jacket on her arm, and showing a large expanse of tanned flesh, in addition to her bare, braceleted arms. One of the new, little, tight-fitting hats slanted over one temple. Her lips were bright crimson, and her large eyes were made actually startling by blue pencil shadows and mascara.

When her husband appeared, she greeted him with a pretense of timidity. "Now don't be cross because I interrupted your sacred, important business, will you? I came about something important, too——"

He led the way to some grouped chairs in a railed recess by the windows, out of hearing of the rest of the room, and she went on in an altered voice, "You will simply have to let me have some money."

"My dear, I——"

"Yes, I know you gave me a check yesterday for a hundred dollars. Well, those fur people sent around a collector to make a fuss about my coat, and I had to give him nearly the whole of it. Now I am going to play contract for the unemployed, lord knows how much a point, and you'll have to give me at least a hundred more."

SHE WANTS CASH

Alspaugh knew better than to demur. She wanted cash, and he went away to confer with the cashier. Left alone, Marian rose idly, pushed open a window, admitting a hot breeze that blew everybody's papers about, and thrust her head out to look down into the street.

When Alspaugh came back, her manner had changed again, nor was it only because he was bringing her a sheaf of notes, which she crammed hastily into her bag.

"Sit down and talk to me a minute, Homer," she urged. "Tell me, do you think I have too much makeup on? And should I be wearing this jacket?"

He said yes to each question, so she produced a handkerchief and a little mirror and removed much of the over-emphasis of the make-up, and then slipped into the jacket.

"She's supposed to be awfully conservative, I know—"

"She? Who? The woman that's giving this bridge party?"

"Dolly Holbrook? I should say not! I mean Mrs. Ingram. I seaw her Mercedes drive up and she got out and went into the bank. I've a hunch she is coming up here and it won't do me any harm to meet her, you know!"

"You have met her."

"Well, she doesn't seem to remember it!"

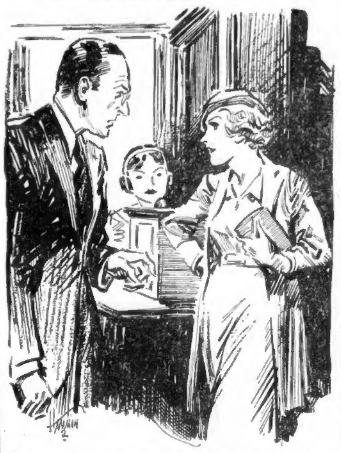
(In the next instalment read how Marian is selected to be cigarette girl at garden party of the rich because she's the type to wheedle money from men.)



"Now don't be cross because I interrupted your sacred important business, will you? Marian asked with pretended timidity.

Varied Pattern

By MARIAN MARTIN

This is not a "one way" pattern! You can make a whole flock of pretty dresses from it, so different from each other you would never know they were related. It may have long or short sleeves. The sleeves may have the little wing in them or not, just as you please. The neck may be finished with a bow or with double fan ends or with just two large buttons as in the small sketches. Below the sketches you see a view of the back. It's as smart as the front! A model for silk or sheer wool.

Pattern 9080 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric and 1⅜ yards 6 inch ribbon for bow.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

How would you like a book of fashions designed for sun-drenched days and starlit nights? It tells you about, and has pictures of everything from a wedding dress to a garden frock. It shows you the latest fabrics, and talks wisely about beauty. In short . . . it's a treasure! It's the Summer edition of the Marian Martin Pattern book and it costs fifteen cents. The book and pattern together are twenty-five cents.

NEW HEAT WAVE SCORCHES U. S.

By Associated Press

Scorching temperatures burned again today the mid-continent already hard hit by heat waves and drought.

The new heat wave extends from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachian highlands, and southward into the gulf states, further damaging crops in sections that have been suffering all summer.

Temperature readings of 100 degrees or more are common throughout the stricken area.

WINDS ARE HOT

Hot winds in some parts aggravate the situation, particularly in Missouri, which with Kansas is among the sections hardest hit.

Kansas City had an official high of 108 yesterday; St. Louis and Wichita had 104; Springfield, Mo. and Oklahoma City, 102; Springfield, Ill., 104, and Concordia, Kan., 108.

There were many other high readings. In North Dakota the temperature ranged from 90 to 94, but dropped late last night when a heavy rain fell.

FOUR KILLED

Four deaths were attributed to the heat in Iowa where many readings above 100 degrees were reported.

Further injuries to livestock are reported. At Dodge City, Kan., growers said there would not be sufficient feed to carry the cattle through the winter unless rain comes soon. Southern Illinois also reports great suffering to livestock.

Despite the widespread heat area, some few spots had received relief. Excessive rain fell in Salt Lake County, Utah, and northeastern Nebraska reported beneficial moisture.

MONKEYS LIKE STONE AGE MEN

By International News Service

Rome, Aug. 8—For some reason unknown to scientists, monkeys are suddenly evolving into an inventive stage similar to the stone age of man, in the opinion of Miss Ella Tarleton, who abandoned the life of a missionary among savages to conduct research into Simian psychology. She said today:

"Monkeys are now making great mental progress, evolving from their primitive state.

"I do not think they will ever achieve the ability of humans to grasp abstract ideas, but they show signs of becoming what men were in the stone age.

"My research leads me to believe that the beginning of the present century saw the beginning of their progress. I do not know why this progress was so long delayed. But scientists cannot tell us just why man evolved from one age to another. Some subtle change might explain it all."

Miss Tarleton said that in the wilds monkeys wage war like ancient humans, hurling projectiles at each other. They have progressed in cleanliness and now build villages by brooks where mother monkeys bathe the young, and they have abandoned homes in trees to build arbors on the ground.

She added that she observed one monkey that had "invented" an umbrella of large leaves. She said the idea proved popular and many monkeys followed suit. Monkeys also invented a fly swatter of tough vegetation.

Corn Belt Crops Burning Up; Farmers Shoot Cattle

By International News Service

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 8—Only soaking rains for days can save Nebraska's crops, A. E. Anderson, State and Federal Agricultural statistician, said today.

Not since 1890 have the state's farms and orchards been burned and withered by drought as this summer.

More than 75 per cent of the state's corn crop will be entirely lost unless precipitation comes soon.

Crop experts estimate conditinos as follows:

Corn, as compared with normal years, is rated in the Omaha area at 55 per cent; Lincoln area, 22 per cent; southwest Nebraska, about 80 per cent.

Some estimate corn in the eastern half of the state as a trifle more than 30 per cent normal, with potatoes and fruit 33 per cent normal.

In the western half of the state scenes of crushing disaster are almost everywhere. Water holes and small streams have given out completely, almost all cattle have been killed or sold.

Some ranchers have dug immense holes, herded their weakened stock to the brink and shot them.

Pastures and hayfields are burned brown. In southeast Nebraska hay is selling for $25 a ton. Milk prices in some localities have jumped to ten cents a quart.

In Illinois slight hope is held for anything like normal crops. A. J. Surratt, federal crop statistician, paints a dire picture, reporting the oats crop the poorets in the history of the state. The normal yield for wheat is 36 bushels an acre; the 1934 crop will barely touch 15 bushels, he said.

Central Illinois, Surratt said, will have fair corn crop but in the rest of the state the yield will be far below average. The outlook for the apple crop is poor. Pastures are burned to a crisp and farmers are feeding their winter supply of hay to keep their cattle from starving.

The spectacle of farmers hauling water as wells, cisterns and creeks have gone dry is commonplace in Illinois. Railways have sent carload after carload of water to the drouth-stricken farmers.

In Iowa, where "the corn grows high," fields are burned and half-barren, corn stalks rattle like ghosts, the corn ears dried and browned.

Charles D. Reed, director of the Iowa Weather and Crop Bureau, reported the state's corn condition this week as only 55 per cent normal, the worst condition since 1901.

Yields of wheat, oats and barley in Iowa will be only about one-third normal.

A cheering aspect is 60 and 70-cent corn. And the farmers have corn to sell. Through the government's corn warehousing programs, in which farmers were advanced 45 cents a bushel on sealed corn, there are now countless bushels in cribs.

TRUCK SMASH INJURES FIVE

A truck and an auto collided at Hancock and Fenno streets, Quincy, today causing injuries to five men, three of whom were taken to the Quincy City hospital.

John J. McNamara, West Fifth street, South Boston, operator of the truck and Louis Murray, 69 Elmwood avenue, Wollaston, operator of the auto, were uninjured.

Two other passengers in the truck, Jerome Shine, 20, Hutchinson street, Cambridge, and Joseph Schnuble, 21, West Third street, South Boston, sustained minor injuries.

PRINTS HUNTED IN ASHBY DEATH

Ashby, Aug. 8—Convinced that the killer of 80-year-old Walter E. Tanner dragged his victim from the barn to the bedroom where he was found, then left him in terror, police today began a minute scrutiny of fingerprints on the doors and walls of the Foster farmhouse.

The murder victim, caretaker of the place, met death from a hammer-slayer, they said, but he waged a desperate struggle for his life before the fatal blow was delivered.

Because the dead man's hands were battered and scratched, authorities are further of the opinion that Tanner's slayer must bear some marks of the battle.

The autopsy, conducted by Dr. Frank S. Bulkeley of Ayer, district medical examiner, and Dr. George Burgess Magrath, expert from Boston, revealed how Tanner met death.

BIGAMY AIDING FUGITIVE FIGHT

A new obstacle, in the shape of a bigamy charge, may be placed in the way of Massachusetts' efforts to bring about the extradition from California of George Gilbert, fugitive from Norfolk Prison Colony, it appeared today.

Although the extradition warrant was signed yesterday, police of Los Angeles, where Gilbert is under arrest, have learned that when he married Dora Milse, 20, there, he had (and still has) a wife and four children in Boston.

If Los Angeles authorities decide to press a bigamy charge the long fight to return Gilbert, originally featured by the claim of California authorities that he is "wholly rehabilitated and leading an honest life," may be temporarily lost.

Gilbert, who fled the Norfolk colony while serving a term for kidnaping, married Dora Miles under the name of George Parker. She told police:

"I married him for better or worse and I'll wait for him if it takes the rest of my life."

That was before she learned the legality of her marriage was in doubt.

97th Court Visit Brings Jail Term

His 97th appearance in a Salem court, resulted in Salvatore Vitale, 54, of Beverly, being sentenced to the state farm.

According to police, Vitale was arrested, carrying an axe, after a fight in a Beverly camp. He was charged with drunkenness.

WHAT can a woman do to be charming?

It isn't a matter of a Grecian profile or gowns with a Paris label. It isn't a matter of age or money. It is often a matter of health.

Health means a clear skin . . . sparkling eyes . . . bubbling vitality . . . steady nerves and a dependable disposition. Radiant health is the foundation of beauty and charm. The woman who is healthy and friendly and interested in the world about her cannot fail to be attractive to others.

If you are not as well as you want to be, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remember that 98 out of 100 women say, "It helps me!"

"I was a disagreeable old spit-cat!" — says Mrs. Davidson

"I was so nervous I wanted to scream. Your Tablets helped me wonderfully. My husband remarked last night of the difference he sees in me. I am not that grouchy, disagreeable old spit cat I was three weeks ago. I am a cheerful, joking young girl again."—MRS. CLARENCE R. DAVIDSON, 1311 Milburn Blvd., Mishawaka, Indiana.

"All the fun was gone out of life—"

"All the fun was gone out of life. I was very nervous and had terrible backaches. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a great medicine for a woman at any time of life but especially at the Change and before motherhood. My daughter Lucille feels 100% better since she took it. It helped my daughter-in-law, too."—MRS. S. MATUSHEK, 10907 Edbrooke Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

If periodic pain is dragging you down, ask your druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. Mrs. Marion Sidor, 5436 Grace Street, Chicago, Illinois, says: "I had severe pains and terrible headaches periodically. My husband saw your Tablets advertised and bought me a bottle. They helped me wonderfully — stopped all the pain."

It's old fashioned to suffer. Silly, too, when so many stores sell Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They bring welcome relief from cramping pains, "blue" spells, periodic backache and headache and similar discomforts which undermine a woman's charm.

HIGHWAY USERS URGE 2-CENT GAS TAX

Reduction of the state gasoline tax to two cents a gallon and expenditure solely for highway construction will be asked of Governor Ely by the Massachusetts Highway Users Association, formed last night at a Chamber of Commerce dinner.

The dinner, attended by more than 1000 users of the state highways for the transaction of business, was featured by the remarks of Roy F. Britton, director of the National Highway Users Conference, which opened in Boston yesterday.

Britton said:

"The highway users of Massachusetts have already more than paid back to the state every dollar that has been spent for the entire highway system. From the inauguration of the highway system in 1893 until the end of 1933, expenditures amounted to $142,662,515, while during the past twenty years motor vehicle owners paid to the state in registration fees and gasoline taxes $169,975,436."

Henry F. Stoddard, manager of the Boston Automobile Club, chairman of the banquet, introduced Harold C. Hart, who said that Massachusetts will be the thirty-second state to affiliate with the national body.

3 STATES COUNT THEIR VOTES

By Associated Press

Three states tallied off-year primary ballots today and posted these apparent results:

In West Virginia—Rush D. Holt, whose age—29—is one year under the constitutional age requirement for a United States Senator, wins the Democratic nomination and the right to oppose Senator Henry D. Hatfield, Republican, in November.

In Missouri—Harry S. Truman, candidate of "Boss Tom" Pendergast of Kansas City, is the Democratic senatorial nominee. The Republican nominee is Senator Roscoe Patterson, who was unopposed.

In Kansas—Republicans renominate Governor Alf M. Landon for a second term; Omar B. Ketchum, youthful mayor of Topeka, wins the Democratic nomination.

Radio Board Warns Air Advertisers

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Radio stations which fail to submit their programs to the federal trade commission for inspection as to false advertising received a warning today. Ewin L. Davis, trade commissioner, said:

"Most stations have co-operated to the fullest but those who have not and do not may expect that we shall keep especially close watch on them and that the communications commission will likewise be kept fully informed of the situation."

Stowaway Found on British Vessel

A stowaway was discovered in the hold of the British schooner Beatrice L., docked at Stetson's wharf, South Boston, when customs officials boarded her, seeking contraband.

The youth, Ernest Morrissey, 18, of Gilbert's Cove, N. S., told police that he had boarded the boat at Plymouth, N. S., for a short holiday before the opening of college.

Al Spohrer's Wife as She Faces Party Charges

AL SPOHRER

Mrs. Elizabeth Spohrer and Edward J. Fagan, saxaphone player, are pictured in court, in Philadelphia after their arrest on charges brought by her husband, Al Spohrer, star catcher for the Boston Braves. The charges involved pajama and root beer parties. They were denied by the defendants who were held in $800 bail each for the grand jury. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

SHORTS UP TO GIRLS

think this business of wearing shorts was a moral question. Of course, it's no such thing. Even a horsefly knows that what it's all about is how a girl looks in shorts and you and I know that only the girl who finds them becoming is going to wear them. So what's all the shootin' for?"

Frederick Rogers, 21 O street, South Boston:

"I think shorts are swell—on the right girl. But, come to think of it, I've never seen shorts on any other but a good-looking girl who's got what it takes to warrant freedom of the knees. I guess women are a lot smarter than we give them credit for. Take men, for instance, you'd think they never looked in a mirror to see some of them, spindly-shanked and hollow-chested, strutting around on the bathing beaches in shorts that are little more than G-strings."

Frederick Rogers

DEE-VINE ON SOME

Miss Charlotte Westerling, 10 Newburg street, Roslindale:

"I think shorts are O. K. — only I don't look well in them. I think you have to be well built and not too tall to wear them. Helen Jacobs, for instance, is just the type for them, but I hope Amelia Earhart, one of my favorite famous women, never adopts them."

Charlotte Westerling

Miss Eleanor Mara, 17 Arcola street, Jamaica Plain:

"It just happens that I sell shorts, so I ought to be for them willy-nilly. As a matter of fact, I've sold shorts to some women with the greatest reluctance because I know they'll look perfectly ridiculous in them. On the other hand, I've had to use all my persuasive powers urging other girls to buy them because I know they'll look absolutely dee-vine in them. So there you are."

FROWNS ON SHORTS

Morris Waldman, 127 Lawton avenue, Lynn, traveling salesman:

"I can't see any reason for women to wear shorts. I think they're a form of exhibitionism. The only reasons for persons to be on a golf course are for recreation and exercise, certainly not to put on a style show. Modern sports clothes are ideal for playing golf or tennis. Why, women should decide that shorts are superior for such purposes is just another of those 'just because' feminine arguments that go a long way towards proving woman's inferiority to man."

Morris Waldman

"I can't see any advantage in wearing shorts for golf or tennis. There's freer action of course. But after all, the modern skirt is reasonably tight and admirably suited to the average woman player's foot-spread of 18 inches. The ordinary golf skirt is so designed as to prevent any flapping."

John G. Waite

MOSQUITOES CAN BITE

John J. Waite, 92 Summer street:

"Shorts may be more comfortable on local courses. However, there is one major objection to them on Cape courses and that is the mosquito-biting hazard. At best, though, I don't think they help a player's game any and, of course, they should never be worn by any but a perfectly-proportioned girl."

LOST, 1 BOSTON "DETECTIVE"

As a matter of professional pride, Boston detectives today were reluctant to ask the entire police department and the public at large to join in the search for a missing member of their bureau.

It was bad publicity to admit that a detective was missing, they felt, and even worse to confess that the rest of them could not find the missing one.

But facts like that will out, and so it was revealed that Patches, a gray and white Maltese kitten that joined the Detective Bureau a month ago and was assigned to dig up some very dirty rats, is gone.

After serching Headquarters from roof to cellar, the detectives admitted they were stumped. They first missed Patches, they said, when he failed to appear for the morning "show-up" and his bowl of milk, which is always set out on the desk of Policewoman Lillian A. Taylor.

Ky Laffoon Leads Rochester Field

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 8 (US)—Shooting a 68, three strokes under par for the east course, Ky Laffoon led a field of 140 at the end of the opening round of the $3,000 Rochester Centennial-Walter Hagen testimonial open golf play.

ONE STOWAWAY FREED, 1 HELD

Immigration officials released one stowaway and held another for deportation today, when customs officials discovered the two youths hiding in the holds of two ships during their regular search for contraband.

The stowaways spent the night in the immigration station. Ernest Morrissey, 18, of Gilbert's Cove, N. S., who told police he boarded the British schooner Beatrice L. in Plymouth, N. S., for a short holiday before the opening of college, was released.

Morrissey will return on the Beatrice L. when the ship completes unloading its cargo.

The other stowaway, a Phillipino youth, Isidro Cordero, 23, ordered deported by officials, was found in the hold of the American Pioneer line motorship City of Elwood when it docked at the Army Base from Shanghai, China.

Goodwin Calls Report of Curley Parley 'Lie'

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Frank A. Goodwin, candidate for the Republican and Democratic nominations for Governor, today branded a report that he had been in conference with former Mayor James M. Curley, one of his opponents, as a "deliberate lie." Goodwin declared:

"I have not seen Curley since he was mayor and do not want to. He is not in this picture in my opinion because he cannot possibly be nominated.

"When the smoke of the battle clears away the election fight will be between General Charles H. Cole, the hand-picked candidate of State Street, and Frank A. Goodwin, the candidate of the forgotten men and women of Massachusetts, who are tired of being exploited by bankers, insurance people, power and light gougers and grafting politicians."

FLAREUP FOLLOWS THREAT

Goodwin's flareup follows a threat made by him at a G. O. P. rally in Brockton, in the presence of his Republican rival, Lieutenant-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon.

He vowed to run as an independent for governor after the primaries in the November election, unless the Republican state committee and its affiliate organizations cease working for the G. O. P. state ticket as endorsed in the Worcester convention.

He complained that the state committee was barring him from rallies everywhere and actively supporting Bacon's candidacy. He told his hearers:

"As a candidate who received the vote of 180,000 Republicans and supported Frank G. Allen and William S. Youngman, I am entitled to a square deal.

"If I don't get it it will be just too bad for the hand-picked candidates of the State street ticket.

FIGH TPROMISED

"I am going to file as an independent unless the state committee and its clubs and subcommittees mind their own business and keep out of this primary fight."

To show that he means business Goodwin's supporters today were bunsy circulating their candidate's independent papers in the various counties.

Lieutenant-Governor Bacon, taking up the Goodwin complaint at the Brockton rally, said he did not know what justification there was for the broadside.

Bacon then personally declared that his position was that the former motor vehicle registrar should be invited to all G. O. P. rallies and given every opportunity to present his case. Bacon said:

Due principally to the lack of a war chest among prospective opponents, Senator David I. Walsh, it appears likely, will escape any serious contest for re-nomination.

Former District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien of Suffolk County, and former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry of Boston, both mentioned as eager to enter the lists against Walsh, were fading from the picture today.

O'Brien's candidacy hinged on the raising of sufficient funds to carry on the campaign. There appears little hope that the necessary funds will be forthcoming in time to get signatures to nomination papers certified by next Friday, the deadline.

PAPERS BEING SIGNED

Barry is not concerned so much with finances, but feels that he cannot give the time from his law practice to carry on a campaign. His nomination papers are in circulation and some have been certified locally. But, it is not at all certain that they will be filed with the secretary of state. The last day for filing at the State House is August 14.

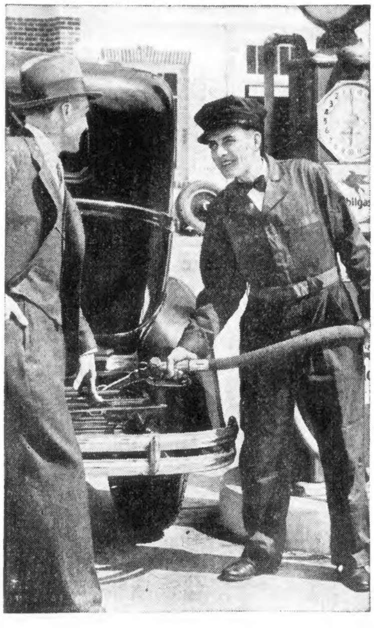
A Friendly Interest
THAT DOESN'T STOP AT THE GAS PUMP!



This "Seven-Step Check-up" of your car's running needs is a regular part of the service at a Socony Station or Dealer

EVER WONDER what a serviceman thinks about? If it's a Socony serviceman, he thinks about several things.

As he fills the tank, he thinks to clean your rear window—and to tighten the tank cap. Next he checks your oil. And while the hood is up, he looks over the spark plugs and fan belt.

Then—automatically—up to the front to fill your radiator. While there, he sees whether tires need air.

Next stop is the passenger's side of the car, where he cleans the windshield. Then back to the driver's side, to wipe that clean—and report anything that seems to need attention.

All this is automatic. A "seven-step" survey of your car that shows whether everything is as it should be.

Socony Mobilgas gives you finer car performance; Mobiloil is a better oil for modern motors. But in addition to these plus-values, you get the friendly help of a man who knows cars, every time you stop at the sign of the Flying Red Horse.

WHILE HE FILLS the radiator, the serviceman looks to see if tires are soft. If it's after dark, he makes sure headlights are burning.

NOT ONLY MAPS, but the very latest information about roads and road conditions is yours for the asking at Socony stations and dealers.

A DIRTY REAR WINDOW is dangerous, so Socony men wipe it clean when they fill your tank. A small service too often overlooked.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The latest heresy hunt in this land of ours which is so constantly beset by heresy hunts of one kind or another is that sponsored by the American Bar Association and directed at the college professors and college presidents. The accusation—based on a questionnaire survey of some 600 of our institutions is that said college presidents and professors have the darnedest ideas about the Constitution! The language is a bit more academic than that, but the meaning is the same

Robt. E. Rogers

The faculties are blamed for not offering courses on the Constitution, as well as for holding heretical, heterodox, and "amazing" conceptions of the history, meaning, purpose and philosophy of our frame of government. The idea, apparently, is that if our students are expressing funny ideas, we must look at our teachers. I wonder whether the Bar Association is not barking up the wrong tree.

The association must know that in our existing American form of college or university, the average college president is chosen for his presumable abilities as a money raiser and promotion manager. He is not supposed to be a scholar. Such a man as Nicholas Murray Butler or Abbot Lawrence Lowell, skilled students in international affairs and our own social problems, are pretty rare. Usually our college presidents confine themselves in their public utterances to academic problems, business conditions, and ethics in the larger, looser sense.

Similarly, anyone who knows anything about faculties knows that professors are chosen as specialists in highly specialized subjects. What would a zoologist, archaeologist, expert in Greek letters or Latin prose or the Lake poets know of the Constitution? He is not expected to know. If he has ideas and tries to express them he is looked upon as a person of very bad taste attempting to chisel in on a colleague's specialty. Such a man as Gilbert Murray, Greek scholar, translator, and expert on the League of Nations, one of England's intellectual glories, would be considered a babbler, dilettante, and amateur over here, a betrayer of the Ph. D. system

In an America college, only the professors of civics, comparative government, and U. S. history (half course, 1775 to 1861) are expected to know anything about the Constitution or say anything about it. And since they obviously cannot teach the whole college, the result is (as the A. B. A. very justly points out) that the average student graduates without ever hearing of that necessary and embattled document. Such ideas as they do get must be the result of their outside and unofficial reading in the newspapers and magazines.

But I suspect something rather more dangerous in the Bar Association's report, particularly in its characterization of the views of the officers of 600 colleges as "amazing and startling." I suspect an attempt to setup an "orthodox" philosophy of the Constitution, an interpretation of the lawyers, for the lawyers, and by the lawyers, as if it were a kind of Torah entrusted to the high priests of the law for permanent interpretation

I suspect that the basis of this newest attack on the professors is a distinct feeling on the part of the lawyers that the Constitution is getting out of hand and that all sorts of irreverent and heretical [illegible] amateur economists, sociologists, historians, psychiatrists and theologians are laying blasphemous hands on the Ark of the Covenant, profaning a mystery which the legal profession has always held peculiarly its own. If that is the basis of their accusation, they're darned tooting! Most of our academic younger generation, whether specialists or not, do most certainly hold revolutionary ideas about the Constitution, and when they get jobs in Washington, as they are getting them with increasing frequency under the New Deal, they apparently do their best to put them into practice.

Roughly, I suppose it is a civil strife between the Sons of James M. Beck, the great traditionalist, the viewer-with-alarm, who thinks of the Constitution as the permanent and unchangeable statement of principles that time cannot affect, and the Sons of Charles A. Beard, who sees the Constitution as an economic device very skillfully invented to protect the well-to-do in the permanent possession of their wealth against the legislative depredation of the debtor class of that day. They look upon it as the product of an agricultural and mercantile age, and therefore a woeful misfit, a bed of Procrustes, for an age of monstrous mechanical industry and complex finance

Pretty nearly every argument falls under some sub-head of these two points of view. In addition, the academic class generally adopts with great respect the constitutional ideas of the former Mr. Justice Holmes and the extant Mr. Justice Brandeis the consistent dissenters and liberals in constitutional matters. And they haven't a polite word for Mr. Justice Pierce Butler, who does for the Constitution in practice what Mr. James M. Beck does in th[illegible]

Here [illegible] a deep gulf fixed. One possible result is revision, another is nullification. Anyway, I suspect the Bar Association has started something. May we expect an answer from the American Association of University Professors? It ought to be a hot one

So far had the fans of the controversy spread that it was reported a Century of Progress exhibitor had offered $275 for the drawing. Miss Neumark asked only $35 for it before all this business started. It is hinted the price is now $350

Ever more intriguing was the way the "old army game" was being worked in the matter of who was responsible for banning the drawing

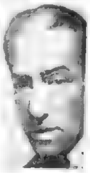
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK

DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—No other prominent New Yorker [illegible] complete self-effacement of Al Smith during the past few months. It was as though a great magician waved his wand and [illegible] Al was gone. As sudden [illegible] as turning off a [illegible] He came out of his [illegible] new Tammany [illegible] That was all



O. O. McIntyre

There are [illegible] Some say he is [illegible] his series. Others [illegible] is writing his memoirs. And still others he has only taken time off from an extremely busy life to do the things he wants to do, mingle with old friends and his grandchildren

Whatever the reason, his picturesque presence is missing from familiar haunts, Dinty Moore's, Lindy's, the theatrical first nights and banquet boards. Perhaps the most noticeable evanishment was from press rooms. There was scarcely a week he was not laying a corner stone or welcoming visiting moujiks at the Empire

Not even Jimmy Walker in his heyday was so definite a part of the New York panorama as Smith and his brown derby. His voice over the radio, almost as familiar as that of Amos 'n' Andy, is rarely heard. And he writes no more for the newspapers and magazines.

* * *

Gene Tunney, too, is among popular celebrities to duck the limelight with increasing persistence. He could be drawn out of his seclusion now and then to a private dinner, tea, occasional first night or baby shower for Dempsey. But of late he has become almost Lindberghian in his diffidence. His cloister is a Connecticut estate where he varies intensive reading with wood chopping.

* * *

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, along with Katharine Cornell form the romantic trio that seems the last firm link with the legitimate theater. The Lunts recent return from a year's foreign trek and the announcement of a forthcoming appearance in a Noel Coward play did a little to inspire hope of a renaissance along the Rialto, about the only latent radiation indeed in the gathering gloom.

* * *

Kate Smith is reputed to have salted the proverbial cool million in gilt-edged investments, if any, against the day she retires, thus, next to Chaplin, perhaps the wealthiest performer of her era. She expects in leisure to travel in foreign lands. The success of this overgrown bumpkin upsets usual theories of amusement impressari. She has few qualities of the box office draw, especially the evanescent something termed "it." Or is her voice of a remarkably appealing timbre. Her major charm is the sheer and contagious quality of joy she puts into her work, plus a graciousness few performers attain. Unshowy, she stops on tours at inconspicuous hotels, demanding only her rooms be flooded with sunshine. She neither smokes nor drinks and her relaxation is movie fan magazines

* * *

New York first saw Kate Smith as an awkward brobdingnagian foil—for the Howard brothers I believe—in a George White summer show. Her novelty was a round-house size. Yet two years later she established an all time high for the longest individual run at the Palace, the vaudeville valhalla. And then her sustaining popularity on the air. Some chunk of gal!

The inevitable companion of every prize fight champion is the smiling young Irishman, Steve Hannagan. He was a pal of Dempsey's in the days of his full glory, then companion and press agent of Gene Tunney shortly before and after his rise to the championship. Now most of the good fellowship gatherings, cocktail parties and such that were given for Max Baer were sponsored by him. He is also likely the most intimate friend of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, air ace

I called on an arty exquisite in his Sutton Place bachelor study recently. In the low lights he was tricked out in a deep purple lounging suit, black kerchief in breast pocket, lavender soft shirt and flowing black bow. This was the billiards. I must have an outfit of that sort. It came today, but I look like an over-ripe Buster Brown yanked through a wringer. It's no use. I'm just a xxx flour sack with cut out arm holes boy

SESSION ASKED ON AUTO RATES

A special session of the Legislature to act on the expected increase in auto insurance rates next year, has been requested by Representative Hyman Manevitch of Dorchester

In his letter to Governor Ely, Manevitch suggested that the Legislature also take up the matter of prohibiting charges for installation of equipment by telephone and lighting companies

SKIPPY Origin of Floods and Deserts

WHAT'S THE BIGGEST FISH THEY EVER FOUND IN THE OCEAN?
THAT WAS YEARS AGO. HE WAS SO BIG THAT WHEN HE TOOK A DRINK, HE SWALLOWED THE OCEAN AN' HE DIED 'CAUSE HE DIDN'T HAVE NOTHIN' TO SWIM IN. AT THAT TIME THE PLACE WAS A DESERT, SO A LOT O'MEN WITH CAMELS WENT OUT WITH AN ARK, AN' CUT THE FISH OPEN AN' THEN FLOATED AROUND LOOKIN' FOR ANOTHER DESERT.
THAT'S VERY INTERESTIN'.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the fifteen next most valuable news tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone with the news wins the award. News tips mean money.

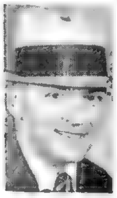
By AUSTEN LAKE

THERE ARE RABBIT MARANVILLES in other lines of sport, midget athletes who are mighty mites, the up-and-atoms of the athletic world. Like "Bitsy" Grant, the human peanut who, though little larger than a standard jockey has been a semifinalist in the last seven major tennis tournaments around the land



Austen Lake

And there is Ken Doraty, the Toronto Maple Leafs forward, who is a capsule of energy and who has made several professional hockey scoring records, although the smallest and lightest player in big time history

And little Louis Bush of Mass. State, who was the Nation's leading scorer in college football for two years running, and who looked like somebody's little boy as he trotted around the campus at Amherst.

Also, don't forget that Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh's great centerfielder, weighs about 30 pounds less than Maranville did at the height of his career and now tips the beam at less than 130. Incidentally Johnny Evers, who scouts for the Braves and scales [illegible] now, weighed only 102 pounds when he first joined the Cubs as a recruit.

* * *

YET IN TENNIS, WHERE reach and height are great advantages in spanking the white ball across the net, Bitsy Grant's undersized brilliance makes him something of a sport freak. He is a sharp faced youth, with thinning hair the color of flax and the [illegible] of blue eyes above a thin slit of a mouth.

Little men, I have found, if they possess any athletic talent at all, have more of the "killer," more get-there and faster reflexes than large men, perhaps because their mental and nervous telegraph system has less distance to travel and their small frames burn up less energy.

You may have noticed that the trend among football centres and baseball catchers, positions that formerly were filled with bulking beeves, is toward the small and medium sized types who are footsy and agile instead of mere shock absorbers. Rick Ferrell of the Red Sox is an example.

* * *

THE NO. 1 BASEBALL MYSTERY of the Brooklyn Dodgers, which concerned the sudden and unexplained disappearance of Jimmy Jordan, utility infielder, who vanished last week without a trace, has been solved. Jimmy telephoned Bob Quinn yesterday that he was safe, but suffering from lumbago and was in care of a New Jersey physician.

This recalls a similar mystery that Bob Quinn used to tell about when he was business director of the St. Louis Browns and the late Urban Shocker went A. W. O. L. Shocker, like Jordan finally telephoned from an upstate health camp that he was convalescing from lumbago. But Quinn, skeptical, hired a detective to determine the true state of his health.

For a whole week Shocker and a mysterious stranger, who was a jolly companion, fished and sported around a Missouri Lake. At the end of that time Shocker regretfully bade him farewell, taking his luggage to the station and waving him goodbye. The stranger was Quinn's detective who furnished Bob with a full report, saying "I hate to do it, Urban was such a nice guy." It cost the pitcher $1000 cold cash and a month's suspension.

* * *

BILL McKECHNIE'S PRIZE BIRTHDAY story—Bill was 47 yesterday, is the one about the late Kid Gleason. He relates that Kid, during his latter days as a Philly infielder, was reckoned one of the toughest tykes in the game's history who could take on the Alpha chapter of a teamsters union and lick them collectively.

This day a sizzling grounder popped up and hit Kid on the nose, causing a fracture and a spatter of crimson. In his rage Gleason picked up the offending ball and bit it, snapping off a front tooth. Then, angrier than ever, he lammed the ball against the ground and took a hearty kick at it. Only he missed the ball and stubbed his toe so hard that he broke his ankle.

* * *

ALICE BRIDGES OF WHITINSVILLE, the national women's [illegible]0-backstroke champion, and her sister Marguerite, are one of those rare phenomenons of sport, twins who are within close competitive range of each other. Respectively they finished 1-2 in the N. E. mile championship at Onset.

Jack and Mike (Twin) Sullivan were the notable example of twins in boxing. Then there are the Perlick twins, Herman and Henry, who have been boxing with moderate success in the middle West. They tell the yarn of these two, called Mike and Ike because of their identical appearance, that Herman weighed in for a Newark, N. J., bout. Only, instead of Herman, that night it was Henry who fought with a weight advantage of some six pounds

There are also the Boehm twin sisters in Greater Boston tennis and the Bradford twins, Charley and Eddie, who used to play the ends for Harvard's football varsity, to the great puzzlement of opposing halfbacks who skirted one end and then the other, seemingly being tackled by the same man.

* * *

THE OUTSTANDING EXAMPLES of twins in Boston golf are the Martins, Leo and Edward of Waltham, who went to the finals at Winchester three weeks ago. They are perfect copies of each other, reminding one of the story of the ancient downeast fisherman twins, of whom they used to say, "if you stick your finger in Eph's mouth and he bites you, that's Jonathon."

* * *

IT WAS DURING THE warm up period before gametime, and Hank Gowdy, genial and laugh loving Braves' coach, was as usual custodian of the bag of practice balls, mostly fuzzy and shop worn apples.

A small boy in tattered overalls scrambled over the wire screen of the left field bleachers and approached, holding something in a soiled and chubby fist. "What's that?" demanded Hank suspiciously. "A quarter," chirped the lad, "I wanta buy a ball."

"Huh," snorted Hank, who likes his fun," those balls cost a couple of bucks each." The lad, abashed, shifted his feet uncomfortably and made signs of retreat. "Tell you what," said Hank, selecting a fairly prime ball, "I'll give you this one for nothing."

The lad grinned gratefully, clutched the ball to his breast. But he still held out the quarter. "No," said Hank, "that's a gift."

"I know," said the tattered lad, "Now I wantta buy one for my kid brother."

Endeavour Reaches Port After 16 Days on Atlantic

Endeavour, British challenger for the America's Cup, is shown arriving at Bristol this morning, convoyed into port after its long voyage from England by the Diesel yacht Vita. The British craft needed sixteen days to complete her sail across the broad Atlantic. She will be refitted at the Herreshoff yards and is expected to be ready for her trial spins by the end of the week. The championship race, against an American yacht to be chosen from among the Yankee, Rainbow and Weetamoe, will be held next month.

Pair of Jacks Remain Near Top of Deck

By Bill Corum

New York, Aug. 8—Sports figures come, go, retire, die, disappear, but the two Jacks we we have always with us

The two Jacks are Dempsey and Kearns and once they formed the most spectacular and widely publicized partnership in all the realm of sports. It must have been a great partnership, for going their separate ways they have continued to make news and attract headlines through the decade since their break.

They split one night in the "Amen Corner" of the late Bill Lahiff's tavern, when Kearns had some hot tempered and badly advised and discourteous things to say about a lady. He should have known better. He would know better now.

I even imagine that he knew better an hour after they were said But there are some things a man can't take back and so those words spoken in anger, have stood for 10 years as a barrier between the two Jacks who rocketed across the pugilistic sky together and left an oddly luminous trail behind them.

PAIR MADE WORK

But maybe I am getting too wordy, shooting around like a comet that way. What I mean is that they left such an indelible mark on the newsprint of those times that whatever either has done since continues to be news and apparently will continue to be indefinitely.

Just to illustrate. Tell me quickly now

What Napoleon Lajoie is doing?

And what's become of Earle Sande?

I happen to know the answers because it is my business to know them. But it is doubtful if many readers could answer all four questions correctly without some investigation. With Dempsey and Kearns it is different. Almost any day it is possible to tell where they are and what they are up to by picking up the newspaper nearest at hand.

WALKER IN ACTION

You have been reading since Saturday of Mr. Dempsey's brand new daughter, also Mrs. Dempsey's though some of us sports scribblers have been careless about giving her even so much as an assist.

And during the next week you will be reading about Mr Kearns sending his newest but scarcely hard new battler, Mickey Walker, after the middleweight title in a bout with Young Corbett III in San Francisco.

Now the middleweight title will not be at stake when the [illegible] from the Shrewsbury and the Fresno Freewheeler meet in the [illegible] Stadium on the evening of August 21. But you cannot blame Jack Kearns for trying and you cannot keep him from trying either.

It hasn't been so many years back that Walker was around here chucking at the leather he had left to chuck at the heavyweights and first flight heavyweights at that. He couldn't quite get away with it even though one of the most magnificent fighting hearts any man ever hauled through the ropes kept him pumping away to the bitter end.

BACK WHERE HE STARTED

So the [illegible] took him back and down step by step and class by class until he is where he started.

It is on this platform that "Ward Heeler Mike" is trying to re-elect him to the middleweight title. Nobody ever beat him for it, he says. Nobody ever beat Jim Walker for mayor, either, Bill.

Much as I like the little laughing Mike, it is the tip off on him that in three or four years Kearns has gone from talking about fights with Carnera, Baer and Hamas to firing challenges at Barney Ross. Ross is the lightweight king. Carnera outgrew the lightweight limit on his sixth birthday.

Anyhow, California's middleweight election is no funnier than lots of other elections, and as I said in the beginning, you just can't keep those two Jacks out of the pot.

By Associated Press

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 8. Poland's native athletes today [illegible] a team of Polish track and field stars from the United States 31 to 29 at the end of the first day of a three day meet.

Walter Janiak, Holy Cross sprinter from New Bedford, Mass., won the 100 meters in 10.6 seconds and Jan Wonsowicz of Gary, Ind., and Ohio State took the pole vault with a leap of 13 feet 5 7/16 inches.

The American sprint relay team, made up of Alvin Golanklewicz, of New York University, Joseph Baca of Chicago, Jan Klinkowski, of Stamford, Conn., and Pennsylvania University, and Janiak, easily defeated Poland.

Edward Ratkowski, Cornell, high jumper, placed second to Plawczyk, of Poland, with a leap of 5 feet 11 inches. Poland won the basketball game played as part of the games.

Fred Moran vs. George Linnehan
Farmer Boy Mack vs. Jack Duffy.
John Swensky vs. Frank Doyle

Bob "Rubber" McCoy, former Holy Cross star, and Dick Stahl of Germany are ready for their finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, at an Alex MacLean show at the arena tonight.

The betting on the [illegible] is at even money. Earlier in the week McCoy ruled a slight choice but the odds have tightened up.

McCoy will rely upon his aggressiveness and flying tackle to win while Stahl will pin his hopes on his headlock. Stahl is a rugged type of grappler, and plans to rough things with McCoy.

What the Stars Did

By The Associated Press

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals, and Allyn Stout, Reds—Dean pitched six-hit shutout in opener. Stout limited Cards to five hits in second game.

Phils' Box Stars Failed to Impress Sox Scouts

By Joe Cashman

The Phils will give Boston fans another peek at Curt Davis, prize mound find of the season, in the second and final game of the series with the Braves this p. m. The Coast rookie has won 16 games with a seventh-place club and is rated the most promising prospect picked up by the Quakers since they discovered Grover Cleveland Alexander a most [illegible] ago.

Davis is no [illegible] being [illegible] his 3[illegible] year. There was a price tag of $50,000 on him two [illegible] ago, but the Phils got him for [illegible] [illegible] would have been [illegible] if he hadn't been grabbed [illegible] Red Sox scouts [illegible] passed him up after [illegible] him over the [illegible] [illegible] been [illegible] a pitcher for four or five years.

Euel Moore, 24-year-old Chickasaw Indian who hurled the opener against the Braves, didn't impress the Fenway ivory hunters either. The Phils bought him from Baltimore last month after he had won eight games in as many starts with an Oriole outfit that boasted of only 18 wins when he left it. He gave the Tribe only seven hits and but one earned run and that was one of his poorer performances since joining the Quakers.

The Phils [illegible] ample of the hustle that has made them one of the [illegible] in the league for the past month. Chiozza knocked down a [illegible] by Whitney back of second. With his back to first and away off balance, he didn't have a chance to complete the play but, finding Bartell at his shoulder, he tossed to the shortstop, whose throw nailed Pinkey with plenty to spare. It was a play in a million.

Governor Joseph B. Ely was among the spectators, occupying a box back of the Tribal bench.

The Braves' seven hits were divided among as many batters. Mayo and Whitney went hitless.

The Phils number their players systematically. The catchers are numbered from 10 to 19, the infielders from 20 to 29, the outfielders 30 to 39 and the pitchers 40 to 49.

Jerome "Dizzy" Dean blanked the Reds with six hits as he became the [illegible] pitcher to win 20 games this season. The last place Reds [illegible] to take the second game of the double-header, leaving the Cards seven games back of the lead.

The Giants increased their National League lead to four full games by virtue of topping the Dodgers, 6 to 4, while the Pirates were turning back the second-place Cubs.

An [illegible]-run rally in the seventh enabled the Tigers to whip the Browns and increase their American League lead to [illegible] games over the Yanks, who were [illegible] a double-header by the Senators.

A home run by Sammy Hale in the ninth robbed George Earnshaw of a shutout as the White Sox beat the Indians, who have collapsed badly since Walter Johnson took sick.

LEFTY SHOWS COURAGE IN COMEBACK

By Joe Cashman

Near the top of the list of noble athletes who can take it right on the chin without flinching insert the name of Ed "Lefty" Brandt.

Next to Billy Werber, the Braves' big southpaw was the pet peeve of local fans earlier in the season because he happened to get off on the wrong foot.

They charged that he was indifferent, that he didn't want to pitch here any longer. Some even went so far as to question his courage, but wisely not within his hearing. They conveniently forgot that he had been handicapped by a lame back and overlooked the fact that several of his defeats were undeserved.

The Spokane sharpshooter heard the allegations and they hurt. But he never complained.

Instead, he ignored the abuse, kept his mouth shut and struggled to get back into top form. About a month ago he succeeded.

ED WINS THIRD STRAIGHT

When he turned back the Phillies, 3 to 1, for his tenth win in Tuesday's tilt, it was his third straight victory and his fourth in five starts. Over this stretch he shut out the Giants with two hits, blanked the Pirates with three safeties, fanned seven Dodgers while giving them only one earned run and whiffed seven Phils yesterday.

At the moment he's the Tribe's most reliable flinger and its chief hope of finishing in the first division.

An orchid to a guy who turned jeers to cheers.

The opener with the Quakers was settled in the first frame when the Warriors landed on Euel Moore, promising giant Indian rookie for three cheap runs. A Texas League single by Urbanski, a Camilli error which allowed Mallon to reach on a sacrifice, a legitimate double by Randy Moore and a pop double by Lee turned the trick.

PHILS GET 7 HITS

Brandt completed a string of 16 scoreless innings before a walk to Bartell, a double by Chiozza and an infield out gave the Quakers their lone run in the sixth.

Lefty Ed gave only seven hits.

Bucky Walters, erstwhile Brave and Red Sox who beat Ed with a home run on the Phils' last visit to town, was made to wish he hadn't by being struck out twice. He was forced to hit into a double play on another occasion.

Duel Looms for Fuzzy and Percival Beezer

By Dave Egan

Fuzzy Joe, G. Wellington McLean, Izzy the Gonniff, Harry the Hawker and all the Boston crowd have arrived in a body. The Rhode Island mob, led by Percival B. Beezer, takes exception to their intrusion, and trouble brews.

A meeting has been arranged for this afternoon when the poorhouse brigade from Massachusetts can meet the poorhouse brigade from [illegible] meeting held late last night, was elected chairman of the Massachusetts group of moochers, and Percival B. Beezer will be spokesman for the Rhode Island clan.

TROUBLE BREWS

[illegible] Beezer and his fine friends have been forced to resort to cubebs.

"I am not going to be trampled upon," said Percival B. Beezer last night. "And especially, I do not intened to have my fingers trampled upon. A butt is a butt, but nobody from Boston is going to make me a butt. Fuzzy Joe may be, and undoubtedly is, a fine upstanding citizen."

"He may not remember me, but I recall him very distinctly," he continued. "He was the gentleman who occupied the soft pine bench on the Boston Common, and perhaps he will recall the fight we had for it. Happening to look through an ash barrel a few nights ago, I came upon a chronicle in the Boston American, saying that Fuzzy Joe and his friends were invading Pawtucket."

"The conference will take place immediately, and if it should develop into bloody noses, you must know that Percival B. Beezer had no part in it. The jails down this way are very uncomfortable. I and my brave men are equipped with bean-blowers, prepared for anything. Come what may, we will win."

DUEL IN PROSPECT

If Fuzzy Joe [illegible] Percival B. Beezer can not come to an agreement, they will fight it out with bean-blowers at 40 paces in the dead of night, behind Barn G. The Hatfield-McCoy [illegible] the real McCoy.

[illegible]

"I am in perfect condition. I know when the barrels go out at the Biltmore, the Dreyfuss, and every hotel in town. I am trained to the minute, and I know that I can outrace Fuzzy Joe or any of his louts to the nearest barrel. The result is in the lap of the gods. Class will tell."

Chairman Fuzzy Joe [illegible]

"So they're going to use bean-blowers, hey? Well, tell them to cook the beans first, so that we can eat them. Hungry men make the best fighters, and are we hungry!"

John Palfrey Wins in Junior Tennis

[illegible], Aug. 8.—John Palfrey of [illegible], Mass., advanced to the third round of the National junior tennis championship here today. Harry Thompson of Manchester, Mass., also entered the third round.

Ruggirello Kayoed by Winston in 6th

Hartford, Aug. 8.—Unknown Winston scored an impressive kayo victory over Sal Ruggirello of New York here in the sixth round of a heavyweight bout. Referee Henry Gerrity stopped the go when Ruggirello was helpless on the ropes.

LIBERTY OAK, VACILLATE COUPLED

PAPER PROFITS, FLYING DON, LERACK

PAPER PROFITS, a consistent performer over at the other town, should be able to handle this ordinary lot. She finished out of the money in her debut over this course, but that effort can be discarded. FLYING DON was up in the final strides to nab Lerack [illegible] and figures next best. LERACK is dropping two pounds off that effort and should share in the spoils.

LIBERTY OAK, VACILLATE, GRACE BLOTTER

LIBERTY OAK and Vacillate will run coupled in the wagering in this event. The former won his last start over this course while VACILLATE earned brackets over at the other town. Looks like they should have things their own way. GRACE BLOTTER turned in a nice effort to place to Poolfon last out. She should furnish the more dangerous contention.

BLIND PRAISE, UNKNOWN SOLDIER, WITTEKIND

BLIND PRAISE was [illegible] quarters soon after the start of his last race and had scant chance thereafter. On Empire City form he should stand a world of beating in an affair of this kind. UNKNOWN SOLDIER finished close up last out and looks next best. WITTEKIND is from the Greentree stable and rates some kind of a chance on New York form.

CARISBROOKE, ALL FORLORN, CANTERSINE

CARISBROOKE won three races in a row over metropolitan tracks before being stopped by Royal Guard. On N. Y. form she shapes up as a standout. ALL FORLORN won her last in excellent time and will take it all if the top one makes any mistakes. CANTERSINE finished close up to All Forlorn last out.

CHINESE EMPRESS, SOBIEHA CLOTHO

Under the weight arrangements CHINESE EMPRESS should reverse the tables on SOBIEHA. The latter was in receipt of three pounds from Chinese Empress in their last meeting. Today Chinese Empress will be dropping twelve pounds while her rival will be picking up two, making a sixteen pound shift in Chinese Empress favor. CLOTHO failed to run his race the other day and is capable of better things.

MORNING MAIL, WESTY'S DUKE, GRANDPA'S BOY

If anything upsets my dope and downs MORNING MAIL, it will likely be WESTY'S DUKE. The latter won two races during the closing stages of the recent Salem session and is razor sharp. GRANDPA'S BOY has raced well enough to be accorded the next best figures.

PRINCE ABBOT, FOLKING, LAWLESS LADY

If PRINCE ABBOT is ever going to win a race it should occur in this affair. The Abbot Nymphs colt is meeting very weak opposition and only has to put forth his best effort. FOLKING, an old fellow with a smattering of class, has been working briskly and should offer the contention. LAWLESS LADY looks next best.

SAINT KITTS, GRAND ACRE, STEP-BROTHER

SAINT KITTS gets the call on her pace to ebiff the other day. The Greentree thoroughbred was not headed until the 16th pole in that test. GRAND ACRE which has won his only two starts over this course in convincing style is strictly the one to drub. STEP BROTHER shapes up well for the minor award.

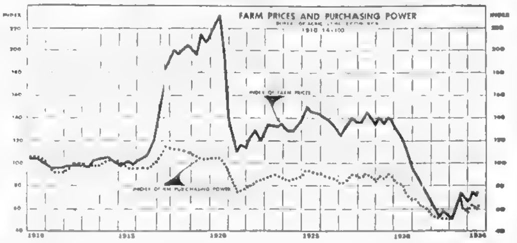
Farm Prosperity Life-Line



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE

This chart shows the life-line of farm prosperity. The solid line is an index of farm prices. The [illegible] shows an index of [illegible] purchasing power which is [illegible] by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the following [illegible] bureau takes an [illegible] farm prices and then divides [illegible] another index representing [illegible] goods which the farmer [illegible]

[illegible] shown as the index [illegible] the price received for [illegible] products into the goods which [illegible] of the recovery [illegible] the level of the pre-war period. For every dollar which the farmer received for wheat, pork and dairy products in the five-year period 1910-1914 he received during the month of June, only 78 cents.

Even so, this represents a rise of 27 [illegible] from the low point reached in February, 1933. The broken line, covering farm purchasing power, contains the real grief of the farmer. It shows that buying power at the present time is approximately 38 per cent below [illegible] which [illegible] enjoyed in the five-year base period. Even so, this represents an improvement of [illegible] points [illegible] the low point [illegible] at the time the administration took office.

The chief [illegible] fact which should be borne in mind in appraising [illegible] as a picture of farm prosperity [illegible] The [illegible] of farm prices represents only one dimension of farm income, even as the index of purchasing power represents but one dimension of expenditure. The other important dimension is the volume of farm production at which any particular level of prices is translated into farm income.

The item is of particular importance today in many of the regions affected by the drouth. If wheat, as a result of providential and AAA intercession, rises to $1.25 a bushel, the result on the chart will be quite striking. If, on the other hand, these two agencies of curtailment leave thousands of farmers without any crops whatsoever, then the [illegible] of farm purchasing power will be quite misleading. The ideal of the farmer, from the income point of view, is to have maximum prices and maximum production [illegible] two goals which are unfortunately incompatible.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE STEADY

Stock prices were generally steady today in dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with narrow changes ruling. Edison Electric showed a loss of a fraction. New England Telephone was a shade higher. American Telephone was [illegible] after [illegible] moderately [illegible] the session.

Bank Credit Reveals Tendency to Expand

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 8—Bank credit reveals an apparently expansive tendency in the latest statistics covering the week ended August 1. Non-security loans and non-government investments had gains among the largest in recent months.

The report for Federal Reserve member banks in 91 leading cities showed a rise of $7,000,000 in all "other" loans and a gain of $64,000,000 in "other" securities. U. S. Government securities advanced $35,000,000, while security loans dropped $133,000,000.

The last two items are not regarded in financial circles as particularly important, however. The drop in security loans was due almost entirely to a shrinkage of $123,000,000 in loans to brokers by New York City banks and the gain in government securities merely continued a long-established trend.

Bankers are anxious to see an expansion in "other" loans, which represent advances to industry for the most part, and in other securities than governments. A sustained gain in the latter would indicate that banks are entering the bond markets, thus paving the way for a revival of capital lending on private account.

Rising corporate bond prices would make possible a gradual replacement of government credit by private financing, a step deemed highly desirable for the sake of business recovery.

Unfortunately, however, the real meaning of these gains a week ago is obscured by the incompleteness of the statistics, it is pointed out. Other loans include such irrelevant items as bank holdings of acceptances and commercial paper, loans on real estate, inter-bank borrowing and advances to municipalities.

Since half of the rise in these so-called commercial loans occurred in New York city, it is possible that at least some of the $70,000,000 increase resulted from a combination of changes in these factors.

American Woolen Loss Is $585,020

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—American Woolen Co. and subsidiaries report for the 6 months ended June 30 net loss of $585,020 after charges and inventory adjustments, compared with net profit of $197,000, equal to 49 cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock in the first half of 1933.

Hudson Motor Car Exports 197 P. C. Above 1933 Period

Hudson Motor Car Company reports export sales of Hudson and Terraplane cars aggregated 8,[illegible] cars for the six months ended June 30, an increase of 197 per cent [illegible] compared with export shipments of 2,7[illegible]1 cars reported for the first six months of 1933. The export shipments were the largest for any corresponding period since 1930.

Shipments of cars from the Canadian factory aggregated 2,808, a gain of 259 per cent as compared with shipments of 783 cars reported for the first half of 1933. Canadian factory shipments for the half year also were the largest for any corresponding period since 1930.

Factory shipments from the United States plant for domestic use aggregated 54,704 cars for the half year ended June 30. This total represents a gain of 182 per cent compared with shipments of 19,428 cars reported for the corresponding period in 1933 and like the record of Canada and the export market, also sets a new high mark for any similar period since 1930.

Shipments in domestic, Canadian and export markets for the six-month period, in all instances were substantially in excess of total shipments [illegible] groups for each of [illegible] 1931 [illegible]

For the week ended July 28 it loaded on own lines [illegible] cars, against 46,822 in same week of 1933 and received from connections [illegible]860, against 61,9[illegible], bringing total cars handled to [illegible], against 1[illegible]737, a decrease of 17.3 per cent.

Machinery Sold Turkey by Soviet

Moscow, Aug. 11 (INS)—Sixty Soviet industrial plants are manufacturing textile machinery for export to Turkey under the terms of the credit granted recently by the Soviet government to the Turkish Sumer bank.

Some 33,000 weaving spindles, 1000 automatic looms, machinery for a dye station and a power station, manufactured here, will be installed in the first Turkish State Combinat in Kaiseri, Anatolia, of which the corner stone was laid recently in the presence of Turkish and Soviet officials.

AUGUST SEEN AS BULL MONTH FOR STOCKS

Out of Last 20 Years Majority Have Been Higher Markets

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 8—In the past the month of August has been a bull month for the stock market. Out of the last 20 years, the majority of them have had higher markets in August.

August price movements, however, have been no barometer of the fall, for while most of the past 20 years have seen higher August prices, in the great many there have been no fall advances in the stock market.

1928—Higher. Unsteady first two weeks. Strong last two weeks. [illegible]

1921—Lower. Firm first two weeks. Lower third and fourth week. Moderate fall advance.

1920—No trend. Narrow all month. Low for year to date in August. No fall advance.

1919—Lower. Sharp decline in first week, recovery in second week, decline in third week and some recovery in final week. Good fall rise.

STOCK TONE IS HEAVY IN DULL TRADING

New York, Aug. 8—Renewed pressure on the rails and weakness in individual issues brought a heavy tone to the stock market today in a continuation of the recent reactionary tendencies.

The decline in the rails was aggravated by selling of rail bonds following reports that Chicago, Great Western may not pay interest due on its bonds September 1.

Union Pacific was again in supply, falling a point to 90, a new 1934 low. Atchison and N. Y. Central were heavy.

Corn Products was again under pressure,a ndl ostn early 2 points toh it a new low for the year. A neww eak spot was Pullman, an erstwhile investmentf avorite, which dropped around2 points.

The mid-week trade reviews offered little encouragement for the steel industry, andwas reflected in steady pressure on the steel shares. Utilities were firm despite the more than seasonal decline in power production. The rise in railroad traffic last wee kwas ignored.

Union Carbide was a heavy spot in the chemicals, while Dupont was lower. Motor shares were sluggish and easier. Oils were supported by the big decline in crude oil production last week.

Mining shares did little in the face of the widespread inflation rumors. Farm shares were heavy, and liquor shares were under pressure. Commodities were down on profittaking. Trading was slow in all markets.

Moderately lower prices ruled in the first hour with trading at a slow pace. Rails were again under pressure with Atchison sliding back a point. Du Plan Silk and American Beet Sugar moved against the general turn, both showing advances of a point.

Schenley Distillers was down a point. U. S. Steel was a shade lower. Loose Wiles Biscuit showed a loss of a point. Corn Products dropped more than a point. Bohn Aluminum was down around two points.

President Roosevelt's trip through drouth-scared areas in the West kept attention focused on that national problem. Appreciation in commodity values actuated chiefly by crop losses was registered in another new 1934 peak for the Moody Spot Commodity Index.

Iron Age, in its weekly summary, commented that "the unusual severity of the drouth in the prairie states has thrown a heavy shadow over business prospects in the iron and steel industry." It is estimated the national steel producing rate had risen to 27½ per cent of capacity from 26, partly as result of increased demand for tin plate in the canning of slaughtered cattle in the drouth districts.

As expected, the July figures on steel production compiled by the American Iron & Steel Institute made an unfavorable showing in comparison with June and last year. Steel output totaled 1,472,584 tons, the lowest since April, 1933, according to the institute's figures, and compared with 3,015,972 in June and with 3,168,354 in July, 1933.

Electric power consumption last week declined moderately. The Edison Electric Institute's report showed the margin of gain over last year was cut to ½ of 1 per cent compared with 1.3 per cent the previous week.

The dollar firmed in foreign exchange dealings. The British pound was off ⅛ of a cent at $5.06¼. French francs were unchanged at 6.63⅝ cents.

Bancroft Hotel Reorganization

A creditors' petition has been filed in the federal court at Boston in connection with proceedings for reorganization of the United Bancroft Hotel Co. of Worcester under the new bankruptcy act. Petitioning creditors are Duncan & Goodell, George F. Blake, Inc., and A. H. Mirick Co., Inc. According to the petition this corporation is indebted to the petitioning creditors in the amount of $1289.

Principal asset of the debtor is real estate valued at $1,000,000 consisting of land and buildings subject to two mortgages. Current assets, according to the petition, amount to $111,968 and fixed assets $1,100,000; total liabilities $1,485,795.

Mill Activity Is 9 Per Cent Lower

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Textile mill activity during the first six months was approximately 9 per cent below that for the corresponding period last year, according to the Textile World. The low point was reached in June, the publication states, when activity was nearly 50 per cent below the same month in 1933. Organized curtailment plans under the NRA were put into effect in that month.

Unemployment In Britain Higher

London, Aug. 8—Registered unemployment in Great Britain increased 33,674 during July. On July 23 the total stood at 2,126,260, against 2,092,586 June 25, and 2,442,175 July 24, 1933.

Purity Bakeries Meeting Put Off

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Directors of Purity Bakery Corp. have postponed their meeting until Aug. 14, at which time dividend payments will be considered.

Drouth Severity Affects Prospects in Steel

New York, Aug. 8—The Iron Age, reviewing conditions in the iron and steel industry, says:

The unusual severity of the drought in the prairie states has thrown a heavy shadow over business prospects in the iron and steel industry. The losses suffered by the agarian tates are far too heavy to be offset by government aid, but the emergency moves taken by the Administration to slaughter and can 7,000,000 head of cattle are proving of temporary benefit to steel producers. The containers required for this program will call for close to 175,000 tons of tinplate.

The can companies may draw on their stocks to supply part of this demand, but the mills will unquestionably be called upon for a large tonnage. Specifications for tinplate have already rebounded and tin mills have raised their production from 45 per cent to 65 per cent of capacity. Semi-finished mills have stepped up operations to increase their output of tin bars and open-hearths have been called upon to supply more raw steel.

Largely as a result of the sudden spurt in tinplate demand, ingot output has risen three points to 19 per cent at Pittsburgh and two points to 37 per cent in the Valleys. There have also been gains of two points to 24 per cent in Cleveland-Lorain area, one point to 22 per cent in Philadelphia district, and 16 points to 25 per cent in the South. Operations are unchanged at 31 per cent at Chicago, 30 per cent at Buffalo, 27 per cent in the Wheeling district and 75 per cent at Detroit.

The national rate of steel production has risen from 26 per cent to 27½ per cent of capacity. Whether further gains will be made depends on continuance of the increased flow of tinplate tonnage and a revival of buying in other lines.

Although there will be some additional buying of steel this month by the automobile industry, it will be restricted mainly to fill-in tonnages for current models. No large purchases of steel for new models are expected until the latter part of September.

Government-sponsored rail and track accessory orders will be completed at Pittsburgh by mid-August and at Chicago before September 1. No important new railroad equipment programs are being launched.

In the construction field hopes are centered on a speeding up of PWA work. Structural steel lettings, at 880 tons, compare with 11,150 tons last week and 15,150 tons two weeks ago. Contracts for July, at 46,500 tons, were the lowest for any month this year and compare with 82,725 tons for June and 87,350 tons for May.

The most depressing aspect of the market is the failure of replenishment buying to make its appearance. There has been a marked slowing up of the tempo of industry activity and inventories accumulated by consumers in June are lasting longer than had been expected. This fact, together with fuller realization of the extent of drought damage, has weakened sentiment in the scrap market, particularly in the Chicago district where there had been rather general price reductions. As a result of the break at Chicago, The Iron Age composite for heavy melting scrap has declined from $10.42 to $10.33 a ton, a new low for the year.

BOND MARKET UNSETTLED

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 8—Renewed weakness in rail issues continued to feature an unsettled bond market today.

Chicago and Great Western 4s led the decline in the carrier group with a slump of almost 2 points to a new low at 32⅜, on the statement of the president that September 1st interest payments might be deferred. Baltimore and Ohio 4½s sagged 1⅛ to 53½; while losses up to a point were sustained in the Northwestern 4¾s; St. Paul 5s A.; and Nickel Plate 4½s.

U. S governments showed a much improved tone, with Treasury 4¼s of '45 outstanding with a gain of 6-32 to 103.8. Treasury 3s, and Treasury 3⅛s, were nominally improved.

High grade investment loans were again in supply. American Waterworks 5s dipped ⅛ to 100½; Consolidated Gas 5s lost ⅛ at 104; and Atchison General 4s declined ⅜ to 103⅝.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Hornblower & Weeks—Despite the unfavorable performance of the market yesterday, we are not yet ready to abandon hopes for a better market in the fall at which time, there is usually a seasonal upturn in business. The volume in yesterday's trading was again very dull and there was no real pressure of liquidation at any time.

Josephthal & Co.—It would be quite bullish if the market should meet effective support around current levels, which are the approximate lows of July and last October. In the second place stocks have not had the rebound which one normally expects after such a drastic decline as we have witnessed over the past month. Finally, on the basis of past experience, it is logical to look for some further attempts to stimulate business by the administration if signs of improvement do not apepar soon.

Clark, Childs & Keech—Aside from a probable temporary rally, conditions still appear uncertain enough to warrant a skeptical attitude regarding the repurchase of holdings disposed of in the past month and a half.

Livingston & Co.—Since it is impossible to guess what the character of the next piece of important news will be, all that one can say about the market is that many issues are fairly attractively priced, if only a moderate amount of fall business improvement comes.

Axton-Fisher Co. Sales Increased

New York, Aug. 8—Wood F. Axton, president of the Axton-Fisher Tobacco Co., stated that sales for the first six months of 1934 were the largest since the formation of the company in 1899. He attributes increased business to the aggressive advertising campaign carried out by the company last year and the new factory giving greater production facilities.

Kelly Springfield Loss Is Smaller

New York, Aug. 8—Kelly Springfield Tire Co. reports for six months ended June 30, 1934, net loss of $553,659 after taxes, depreciation, interest, etc., against loss of 795,996 in first half of 1933.

"Since June 30, all outstanding bank loans have been paid," Edmund S. Burke, president, said. "Total current assets now amount to $6,758,242, with total current liabilities at $1,117,507.

The company has been undergoing an internal reorganization, the executive personnel having been completely changed," he stated. "Major progress has been made in improving factory efficiency and substantial reductions have been effected in operating expenses, little of which was reflected in the first six months.

"Tire prices have not advanced since July, 1933. Since that time raw materials have almost doubled in value and labor rates substantially increased. A proper ratio between selling prices and costs cannot be postponed indefinitely by the industry."

July Steel Rates Off Sharply

New York, Aug. 8—Steel ingot production in July amounted to 1,472,584 gross tons, against 3,015,972 gross tons in June, and 3,168,354 tons in July, 1933, American Iron & Steel Institute reported. The average rate last month was 26.75 per cent, against 52.68 per cent in June and 58.30 per cent in July a year ago.

Daily production in July was 58,903 tons for 25 working days. In June the average was 115,999 tons daily for 26 working days, while in July, last year, it amounted to 126,734 tons for 25 working days.

For the seven months ended with July total output is put at 17,653,473 tons, or 97,533 tons daily for 181 working days, an average of 44.30 per cent. In the corresponding period last year production reached only 12,042,742 tons, or 66,904 tons per day for 180 working days, and the average rate was 30.78 per cent.

New Texas Oil Order

Austin, Aug. 8—Following receipt of the monthly report from the Texas Railroad Commission's refinery department in the East Texas field showing average of 45,953 barrels of illegally-produced crude to stills daily in the field during July, the commission issued an order extending its requirements that the source of all crude oil be applied to all carriers including railroads, and that all receivers of oil obtain tenders from the person offering it for movement showing whether or not the oil was legally produced.

Runs of oil from the East Texas field to stills during July averaged 66,822 barrels daily against 56,232 barrels daily in June, an increase of 10,593 barrels. Of the 88 plants in the field, 62 were operating, 23 were shut down and three under construction at end of the month.

Carloadings Estimate Given

New York, Aug. 8—Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended August 4 to be published Friday are likely to approximate the 608,848 cars figure reported for the week ended July 28. For the week ended August 5, 1933, the total was 613,112 cars.

The first few roads reporting for the week ended August 4 showed a 7.9 per cent gain over the like 1933 week, but this group of roads did not include a large eastern trunk line and therefore are not representative of the country. Loadings for the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads are to make very poor comparisons with a year ago.

The first nine roads to report loadings on line for seven days ended August 4 loaded 130,194 cars, against 131,172 in the preceding week and 120,690 for the like week of last year.

Small New England Apple Crop

On the basis of a condition on July 1 of 37.2 per cent, the New England apple crop is forecast at 3,033,000 bushels, compared with 9,062,000 bushels harvested in 1933 and 7,167,000 the five-year average. The crop is expected to be the smallest on record due to serious winter injury to fruit trees caused by extended periods of extremely low temperatures last winter.

International Mining Assets Up

New York, Aug. 8—International Mining Corp. reports net assets as of June 30, 1934, after deducting organization expenses, were $8,720,245, equal to $21.80 per share on outstanding 400,000 shares of stock. This compares with $6,685,888, or $16.71 a share on Dec. 31, 1933. Assets quoted on stock exchanges were valued at market quotations and those not so quoted were valued at cost.

Cosmetic Company Declares Extra

Hartford, Aug. 8—J. B. Williams Company of Glastonbury, manufacturers of cosmetics, declared regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share and usual extra dividend of 50 cents per share, both payable August 15 to stock of record August 6.

CURB MARKET IS MIXED

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 8—The curb market fluctuated indecisively today, with most issues taken around previous closings.

Utilities were somewhat easier, sentiment dampened by the move of Atlanta to obtain electric power from the T. V. A. American Gas & Electric sagged ⅜ to 21⅜, and Electric Bond & Share was ⅛ lower at 10⅝.

POWER OUTPUT IN WEEK OFF

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 8—Electric power output last week totalled 1,657,638,000-kilowatt hours, compared with 1,683,542,000-kilowatt hours the previous week, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The increase over a year ago was 0.3 per cent against an increase of 1.3 per cent the week before.

New England, 8.8 per cent, against a loss of 7.1 per cent the week before, central industrial, 2.6, against a rise of 0.2; Rocky Mountain, 1.5, against a loss of 3.0.

COMEDIAN BACK ON AIR IN ROLE OF GUEST STAR

After an absence of nearly two years from the air waves, Harry Rose, Broadway's vesatile funny man and veteran vaudeville trouper, will again take to the ether tonight as guest star of Everett Marshall's Broadway Vanities (WNAC) from 8:30 until 9 p. m. Harry will present several of his popular song parodies.

Elizabeth Lennox

That genial master of ceremonies, Everett Marshall, will again headline the show and sing in his baritone voice, "The Desert Song." Elizabeth Lennox is slated for a duo with Marshall, singing "Tea for Two," with the support of Vic Arden, his orchestra and mixd chorus.

Other musical numbers will include "The Night Was Made For Love," "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier," "High and Low" and "Apple Blossom Time in Normandy."

* * *

Fred Allen will again make merry in his Town Hall program tonight (WEEI) at 9:30, supported by that "dumbest-of-dumb dames," Portland Hoffa. The musical part of the program will be supplied by Lennie Hayton and his orchestra, the Songsmiths, and James Melton, the mellow-voiced tenor, who has been signed to appear as a regular feature of the series.

* * *

For those listeners who prefer classical and martial strains, Edwin Franko Goldman will conduct his famous band tonight (WBZ-WBZA) from 9 to 10 p. m., featuring another of his now popular Music Memory Contests. Compositions of Wagner, Liszt, Beethoven and Glinka will be heard on the program.

* * *

Another of those unique broadcasts to and from the Byrd Antarctic Expedition will be heard tonight (WNAC) from 10 to 10:30. Charles J. V. Murphy, communications officer of the expedition, will come to the mike from Little America, and Mark Warnow and his orchestra will reach the ears of the intrepid explorers.

* * *

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will air another all-Russian program tonight (WNAC) from 9 to 10, featuring Tschaikovsky's Sixth Symphony which is universally known as "Pathetique." The strong contrasts.

2 QUINTUPLETS GET 1ST BATH

By International News Service

Callender, Ont., Aug. 8 — The Dionne quintuplets are 71 days old today and ready to assume normal infant life in cots.

According to Dr. A. R. Dafoe, Yvonne and Annette are ready to leave the incubator which has been their home since a few days after their birth.

For the first time these two, the healthiest of the quintet, were bathed in a pan of water while the other three still received their swabbing with olive oil.

Dr. Howard Kelly and his son, Dr. Edmund Kelly of Baltimore, visited the babies and helped to give Marie, the smallest, a radium treatment for the tumor on her leg.

Changes Proposed in Newton Zoning

Two new zoning regulations have been recommended to the Newton board of aldermen by the town planning board.

The proposed ruling would call for the set back of buildings 15 feet from a lot line, and allowance for a street width of at least 70 feet, in all petitions for a change of classification.

Vare Funeral Tomorrow

Philadelphia, Aug. 8 (AP)—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow for William S. Vare, former political leader in Philadelphia. Interment will be in the family mausoleum in Laurel Hill cemetery.

Conrad Nagel Is Freed by Wife

El Paso, Tex., Aug 8—Mrs. Conrad Nagel obtained a divorce from Conrad Nagel, the motion picture actor, in Juarez, Mexico, courts on grounds of incompatibility. Nagel filed a waiver to the action. The couple were married in 1919.

Mrs Conrad Nagel

Settlement of property was made before divorce proceedings were begun, Mrs. Nagel stated. She will have custody of their child, Ruth, 8.

The divorce climaxed a series of rumors in motion picture circles that the veteran actor and his wife were on the verge of parting. Mrs. Nagel, an attractive brunette declared:

"Conrad was away in the East engaged in theatrical work so much of the time that it was hard for us to make a go of it. We still remain perfect friends."

GROSSMAN IN COUNCIL RACE

Seeking renomination to the office he has held for two years, Joseph B. Grossman of Quincy, Republican member of the Governor's Council, today announced that he would file nomination papers at the State House Friday.

At his previous election he polled more than 102,000 votes, giving him a plurality of more than 20,000.

He has represented Quincy in the Legislature and for nine years served as a member of the Quincy board of registrars. He is chairman of the Quincy chapter, American Red Cross and executive member of the board of Boy Scouts of America.

Mystery Blaze in Bowling Alleys

Waltz of 'The Gay 90's' Seen as Fad of 1934

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 8 — The waltz melodies of Johann Strauss will highlight the dance rhythms of the winter. Dancing masters forecost the trend today at their annual convention.

The modern version of the Viennese waltz, however, is to be a tricky affair with a variety of steps and faster tempo.

EXPERT EXPLAINS

"It's the waltz of the 'Gay 90's.

"It is written in the Strauss manner, with the romantic accent on the first beat, but it is faster and gayer. It actually comes as the answer to the demand of college youth and the younger social set for relief from the monotony of the slow waltz.

"And at the end of the step the little run adds unusual vivacity—a characteristic of the new waltz trend."

ENTIRE U. S. STUDIED

Miss Marsh, New York's first dance critic on the old New York World, dancing authority and formerly dancing instructor at Smith College and Columbia University, has just completed a 12,000-mile tour of the United States in the study of the current dance trend.

Joseph L. Champagne, dancing master to Boston's young set saw the revival of the waltz as part of a dancing "revolution." He declared:

"The waltz to my mind is unquestionably the dance for the coming years. "The addition of tango steps will make it modern and poular. The castles revolutioned dancing a quarter of a century ago. Now the trend is toward softer music and greater music."

Rare Old Jugs of Rum Turn Up

3 Bids and Proposals

PROPOSAL
THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL DISEASES.

Notice to Contractors

Sealed separate proposals for Erection of the Wings to the Medical and Surgical Building at the Metropolitan State Hospital, Waltham, Mass., will be received by the Department of Mental Diseases at Room 167, State House, Boston, until 2 o'clock, P. M., daylight saving time, Wednesday, August 15, 1934, and at that time and place will be publicly opened and read. Bids must be made upon the Department's prescribed special form of contract for projects financed and constructed under the terms of the National Industrial Recovery Act and Chapter 365 of the Acts of 1933, to which is attached and made a part thereof The Special Contract Provisions Revised April 15, 1934, of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works and the State Emergency Public Works Commission. Special attention of bidders is called to the prescribed minimum wage rates of $1.20 per hour for skilled labor and $.50 per hour for unskilled labor, and to the special provisions as to semi-skilled labor.

Pursuant to Executive Order 6646, dated March 14, 1934, no bid will be considered unless it includes or is accompanied by a certificate (worded in accordance with P. W. A. 61 revised March 19, 1934) duly executed by the bidder.

All bidders shall be required to file with their bids a properly executed certificate of workmen's compensation insurance issued by a company satisfactory to the State Commissioner of Insurance.

Plans, specifications and contract forms may be obtained at Room 315, Ford Building, 15 Ashburton Place, Boston, upon deposit of the amount of $450.00. Make check payable to the Department of Mental Diseases. This amount is to be included in the estimate and all the checks but that of the successful bidder will be returned upon return of the plans and specifications. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the architect, Gordon Robb, 234 Clarendon Street, Boston.

Bids must be accompanied by properly certified check on, or certificate of deposit issued by, a responsible bank or trust company in the amount of $10,000, made payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Checks and certificates will be returned after execution of the contract upon demand. A surety bond by an approved surety company will be required from the successful bidder in an amount not less than the full amount of the contract. The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals, or to accept any proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth, and no award can be made without the approval of the State Engineer, P. W. A., and of the State Emergency Public Works Commission.

The local registration office of the National Reemployment Service, from which employee lists for this contract shall be obtained (as required in Article C of the Special Contract Provisions) is Massachusetts State Employment Service, A. T. Hinchey, Manager, corner of Church and School Streets, Waltham, Mass.

STOMACH AND HEART

Mr. Ralph Dahlroth, 21 Brook St., Framingham, Mass., says:—"For two years I suffered from Stomach and Heart Trouble, bloating gas pains around heart and was gaining in weight so that I was very much too heavy, and in fact I felt rotten. I read of Dr. Walsh and a friend advised me to go to him. I did so and I feel so much better since he treated me that I took my sister to Dr. Walsh today. I gladly make this statement hoping that others who suffer as I did will see this and go to Dr. Walsh and get well again."

Signed, Ralph Dahlroth.

Road to Prosperity

AT this juncture of our creeping progress back to prosperity, realism rather than ballyhoo is in order.

The President should review the measures which make for prosperity, and those which do not.

Once the maladjustments are corrected, prosperity will again be the normal state of the country, which will attain new and unprecedented peaks in respect to average living standards.

In all candor the question might be raised why all the extraordinary Federal spending has failed thus far better to prime the engine of national prosperity.

With various forms of government in the United States spending 40 per cent of the national income, the expected acceleration to business has not yet been accomplished.

Despite lip service to reflation, drastic deflation has recently been registered in the principal speculative market places.

Why has not the program of "managed recovery" meshed?

Those who think exclusively in terms of the technique of money will perhaps answer that the banks sterilized the process of reflation by piling up $1,800,000,000 in excess reserves instead of employing the new credit potentialities in job-creating commercial loans.

BANKERS are normally guided by the profit motive, and it is obviously more profitable to employ loanable funds than to keep them liquid.

A lack of confidence and a sense of bewilderment on the part of both borrowers and lenders paralyzed credit activities.

While the Administration was preaching reflation and reconstruction, the process was impeded by tall radical talk of visionary New Dealers.

Just at the time when enterprising employers were expected to regain courage and to expand the demand for labor, college professors in high administrative posts were casting aspersions on the whole profit system and on our very competitive organization of society.

Accordingly, instead of proving a net increment to total economic activity as intended, Government projects became to some extent mere replacements for withdrawals or avoidance of private spending and private investment.

An irrelevant zeal for long-term social reform interfered with single-minded devotion to the crucial problem of effecting economic recovery.

Likewise, the insensate demand at Washington for taxes designed to "soak the thrifty" has thwarted recovery.

Russia's False Front

American Communists, Red sympathizers and parlor pinks, have long been loud in their indignant protests against the opinion that the foreign visitor to Soviet Russia has been allowed to see no more of the country than a prettified false front.

Now these persons, who are more red than the Reds themselves, have their answer in the form of a complaint of Ilya Ehrenburg, a Communist journalist, against his nation's faking for the sake of tourists.

Soviet hotels and the Soviet Tourist Agency, according to an article by Ehrenburg in the official Moscow newspaper, Izvestia, have been dressing the stage for American tourists and preventing them from seeing the cruel realities of Russian life.

Before the arrival of 300 of these tourists the waiters and maids in Moscow's Hotel National were trained to bow and scrape and sing sweet songs.

"They were trying to create a fake atmosphere," admits Ehrenburg, demanding that tourists be shown "the real Russia, our sweat and blood, our suffering and struggle."

This Communist writer believes that the truth would be better than the false stage dressing. Non-Communists will not agree with him.

But all Americans should note that the impression brought back by Red-loving American tourists from visits to their Promised Land cannot and should not be trusted.

Harness for Tides

Outside of a Greater Boston spices plant and a mill in Maine, tidewater power has been little used. But both plant and mill have been in successful operation for more than a century.

The plan, if endorsed by the engineers, is expected to have the backing of President Roosevelt, who has already expressed his interest.

Finding a suitable market for the great amount of power that might be generated appears the current main obstacle. This we hope to see overcome.

Times Are Better

Times are better here in the Bay State. So says President Raymond P. Harold of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League.

For concrete evidence Mr. Harold offers figures showing an average gain of 38 per cent in NEW loans to home owners during the past quarter.

July achieved a gain of 16 per cent, Mr. Harold says. The comparison is with a year ago. Just now most of the borrowed money is going for home improvements.

Mr. Harold pledges the co-operative banks to backing the Federal Housing Administration plans which get under way later this month.

Good Beach Idea

Ever spend a vacation along a tide-littered beach? Not much fun is it? But it's even less fun cleaning up, eh? Well, here's an idea.

Up at Hampton Beach—that stretch of sand where a corner of New Hampshire runs down to the Atlantic—they now have "raking bees." One of the many Bostonians who summer there told us about them.

To the tune of "The Volga Boatmen," some 50 vacationists, armed with rakes, start at the high water mark, rake up the debris and pile it on a truck.

They do it three times a week and have a lot of fun. And their beach is speckless. A good idea! Try it on your beach.

Beatty Favors Plan to Junk Naval Ratio Treaty

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Toward the celebration of Navy Week in England, Earl Beatty, admiral of the fleet, made a sensational contribution.

Expressing grave doubts as to whether the British navy is strong enough to perform its mission, Lord Beatty declared that "the time has come when the shackles of international agreement should be thrown off and the shackle accepted in the treaty of London repudiated."

FOLLOWED JAPANESE LEAD

This is in reality an echo of the sentiments expressed a few days ago in Tokio by the premier of Japan, Keisuka Okaba, who condemned the 5-5-3 ratio agreed to at Washington and reaffirmed with modifications in favor of Japan at London. The reason he gave for torpedoing the existing treaty for limitation and reduction of naval armament was the pretense that its underlying principle "hurts the self respect of nations."

Theoretically, the Anglo-Japanese alliance ended at the Washington conference of 1921-1922. But when it comes to building up sea power, Anglo-Japanese co-operation seems to remain in full force.

Those Americans must have short memories who forget that the demand for the Washington conference for the limitation and reduction of naval armament originated in London, and was endorsed in Tokio. At that time, the United States had under construction a naval program that insured supremacy of the seas for the American navy. To prevent this country from attaining such supremacy, London launched a campaign which finally culminated in the calling of the Washington conference.

NO HALT IN BUILDING

The result of that conference was the sacrifice by the United States of its program of new naval construction. Instead of naval supremacy, the American government agreed to a treaty of naval limitation and reduction designed to give to the United States, Great Britain and Japan equality of opportunity in those areas of the world in which operations for the protection of the commerce and national interests of each of these countries must inevitably be carried on.

At the London conference, this principle was modified in favor of Great Britain and Japan.

Meantime, Great Britain and Japan have been steadily building up their navies to the strength authorized by the Washington and London treaties, while the United States failed to follow their example until President Roosevelt entered the White House. Thanks to his leadership, Congress has begun a building program which, if carried out, should give this country a treaty Navy before 1940.

As soon as it becomes evident that the United States intends to build up a treaty Navy as Great Britain and Japan have already done, there comes almost simultaneously from London and Tokio a demand that reduction and limitation of naval armaments by treaties shall be abandoned.

In other words, treaty navies were entirely acceptable to London and Tokio when that device served to stop the United States from building the most powerful navy in the world. They were satisfactory to London and Tokio when that device enabled them to build up their navies while Washington failed to exercise its right under the treaty to build up the American navy.

NO LIMIT ABROAD

But now that a treaty navy is about to mean the same thing for the United States that it means to Great Britain and Japan, the British Admiral of the fleet and the Japanese Premier declare against the whole system of limitation and reduction of naval armaments by international agreement.

The United States has consistently advocated reduction and limitation of armaments by treaty. It has made concessions in vital principles as well as enormous sacrifices in the form of physical "reductions" of its own navy in order to reach agreements with other naval powers. But these other naval powers more and more appear to favor limitation and reduction of armaments afield and afloat only when such limitation applies exclusively to the United States.

In fact, there seems to be no limit to the disarmament on land and sea and in the air to which the great powers of the world will consent, provided the disarming is all done by the United States.

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

LEAD UNPLANNED LIFE

Elsie Robinson

Imagine being whisked, without a second's warning, off to another star. And being forced to find your place in a world where everything was exactly contrariwise to the ways you'd known on earth! A dizzy job?

I'll say. Even so, it would be easy in comparison with the job that folks over forty are tackling today right here in America.

Not only have the notions and manners of their youth changed, but the actual mechanical make-up of their world has altered completely.

They knew an America which traveled—at best—five or six miles per horse hour . . . where letters were seven days a-crawling across 3000 miles — where voices had only yell range.

An America where time and space still raised invincible barriers, and life was planned accordingly.

EVER WONDER?

Ever wonder why Presidents who are elected in November don't enter office until March? So they could manage to get there by ox-cart!

You didn't decide to talk to Paris—or elope to Honolulu—five minutes in advance in a world like that. Life, then, was a planned performance. Planned, to its last move and motive, weeks, months, years in advance.

You were judged by your ability to plan your actions far ahead, and to stick to a plan after you've made it. For, obviously, many other lives were involved in such extensive planning. And if you couldn't plan well, or wouldn't abide by your plan, you raised Cain with all those other careers. So Planners were important citizens fifty years ago. And the person who wouldn't or couldn't, was a Public Enemy.

And now, it's just the other way around! Now the medals are all for the fellow who can go ahead without a plan, or change his plan at a second's notice.

For now, radio, telephone and wireless, automobiles and airplanes have broken down the barriers of time and space. Those barriers meant more than the miles between New York and San Francisco . . . or the hours between Paris and Shanghai.

They meant the distance between the English viewpoint and the American . . . medieval ignorance and oppression, and modern progress and brotherly love . . . often, indeed, between hope and despair, heartbreak and happiness, life and death.

So what has happened to the man who wants to plan far ahead, and stick by his plan? Plenty! And all of it very uncomfortable! That man, who was once The Model Citizen, has now become a Private and Public Nuisance!

For life flows faster than any man's plan—sweeps further than any man's imagination—has greater goals than any man's comfort or convenience.

HERE'S THE TRAGEDY

But here's the tragedy. It is almost impossible for those who were trained by the code of 1884 to realize that that code is obsolete today. They cannot see that what was a virtue then is a vice today. They become despised for those very traits which once made them revered.

It is still well to make plans and to stick to them, when possible. But the plan you make should be large enough, flexible enough, to include the possible gyrations of a whizzing world. And you, yourself, should be plastic enough to change in a flash—or fly it blind—as emergency dictates.

Then how can you know that the thing you're about to do is safe? You can't know. You just have to take a chance. Or—better yet—realize that there are greater things in life than safety. For there are!

It is better to live one day fully, freely, generously . . . forgetting yourself and your own small aims . . . merging, for once, with the great onrush of human life . . . feeling the other fellow's urgency rather than your own . . . feeling, in your pulse, the common rhythm . . . hearing, in your heart, the common song—

It is better, I say, to live like this, for just one day—and then die!—than to spend a hundred cloistered years in petty, personal prudence!

Yet try to understand how desperately hard it is to realize this by one who was taught that only Prudent Planners were really civilized fifty years ago. I know. For I was one of them!

Human Side of the News; Park Great Refuge

By Edwin C. Hill

Thousands flock daily, these hot summer days, to the great zoological park which New York City maintains in its northern borough of The Bronx. It is the same in all large cities where intelligent municipal government provides for little people and grownups collections of birds and beasts drawn from every region of the earth.

This writer, visiting the ample kingdom of horn and hide and feather which his good friend, Dr. W. Reid Blair, the director, rules over with benevolent wisdom, the New York Zoo, and strolling from enclosure to enclosure and cage to cage, observing My Lord the Elephant, the chimpanzees and orangs, the busy beavers and all the rest of the denizens of Dr. Blair's domain, was struck with the thought that animals, tame or wild, have a greater thinking capacity, probably, than ever we give them credit for.

QUESTION OF VANITY

He asked himself the question: does human vanity, the million-year-old habit of arrogating to the human mind the monopoly of thought, make a serious error? And with that thought in mind he put the question up to the zoologist who has spent more than thirty years of his life in the observation of the mental, as well as the physical traits of the innumerable creatures under his care.

And Dr. Blair's answer was that all animals think. Even that which we call "animal instinct" is, in Dr. Blair's judgment, direct intelligence, handed down through thousands or hundreds of years and become, in a way, automatic, though no less intelligent because of its natural and automatic expression.

Of course, there are great differences among animals and species of animals in thought capacity. Dr. Blair made a list of ten of the most intelligent creatures, naming them in the order of thought capacity. At the head of the list he places the chimpanzee.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

If human beings had adopted the chimpanzee or the orang-utan as its faithful friend and household companion, and had trained the apes over a million years, as dogs have been trained, extraordinary results would have been obtained, according to the great zoologist of The Bronx.

Perhaps something like the faculty of speech might eventually have been taught the tailless ones, those creatures with "half a human soul in their bellies," as Mr. Kipling says. Repeated tests have convinced Dr. Blair that the chimpanzee has a fairly good thinking brain. On one occasion Dr. Blair hung a banana high out of reach of a chimpanzee he was studying, but in its cage he placed two rods which could be joined together.

Failing to grab the banana with his bare hands, the chimpanzee paused a few moments, then picked up one of the rods and tried to knock the banana down.

That failing, because the rod was too short, it paused again and then deliberately, after some experimenting, joined the two rods together and easily reached the prize. That, says Dr. Blair, was quick, logical, intelligent thinking.

The third most intelligent of animals in Dr. Blair's estimation is the elephant. Their memory is extraordinary, and keepers at the New York Zoo can tell you a hundred stories of how they remembered persons who had been kind to them and others who had played tricks upon them.

ELEPHANT INTELLIGENT

More than any other animal, except perhaps, the dog, the elephant understands man best and most quickly bows to his will. They are creatures of curious likes and dislikes, and the story has become classic of how Khartum, the largest elephant in captivity at his death a year or so ago, took a fancy to a pair of robins which, year after year, built their nest and raised their young in his enclosure.

He was a terror to mankind in his latter years, too dangerous to approach closely. He was as destructive as a cyclone. He could pick any large lock ever invented. But he loved the robins and displayed a most amusing paternal interest in their domestic affairs.

Fourth comes the gorilla on Dr. Blair's list, the most difficult of all the apes to estimate because its life in captivity is short and it is not nearly as amenable to man as the other apes. At present Dr. Blair, Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars and other zoologists of the great park are making a close study of the pride of the zoo, a young lady gorilla named Janet.

Fifth comes the domestic dog, man's old friend and loyal companion. Long association with man has sharpened the intelligence of the dog and developed to a remarkable degree its capacity for training.

Next comes the beaver, that wonderful little engineer of the forests. Dr. Blair is not among the wiseacres who insist that the beaver works solely by blind instinct and would as soon gnaw down a telephone pole as a poplar tree, upon whose bark it feeds. The horse is seventh on the list, and then comes the sea lion, the bear and the domestic cat.

Here, then, are the 10 most intelligent, but scores of other species are by no means lacking in thought capacity. Rats and mice have it, and birds, and even the bovine creatures in some degree.

A fascinating subject this. Keep it in mind the next time you visit your zoo.

Story of Mary -:- -:- By Winifred Black

"The thing I hated," said Mary, "was the little man—he was such a dirty little man and he sneaked so you never could hear him coming—or going—you just looked up and there he was.

Winifred Black

"He had on overalls and there was a carpenter's rule in his old overall's pocket, and he had a soiled handkerchief, and whenever he saw me looking at him, he pulled it out and waved it at me—with a kind of sly, knowing leer.

"And I was deathly afraid of him, and nobody would do a thing about him.

"I spoke to my daughter and she said, 'Why there's no little man here, mother, there's no one here but me,' and I looked at her bitterly and thought, 'He has paid her to say that.'

"And my son came into the room, and I told him about the hateful little man, and my son said he didn't blame me for hating him—he hated him, too; and he didn't think it was any use trying to get rid of him where we were, what he thought we'd better do was run away from him and hide somewhere so he couldn't find us.

"And he would come after me, he said, at exactly ten minutes past eight, and he'd have the fast car and lots of pillows and things and he'd dare any little old man in overalls to keep up with that car.

"Then he never came back after me—not at ten minutes past eight, nor at nine nor at ten.

"And I heard the squeak of a door and there was the little man, sneaking around the corner of the bed.

"'He's paid him,' I thought 'well, I'll have to trust to the doctor.'

"When the doctor came he said: 'Don't worry now, don't fret, take this and keep it down and you'll be all right in the morning.'

"And he didn't do a thing about the little man with the soiled handkerchief, and I hated him for it. And I hated my nurses because they pretended that they had never heard of the little man, or seen him, either—and then, one morning, all at once, I woke up in my room at home, and the little man was nowhere in sight—and the little rose-colored Japanese plum tree was almost purple outside the window, it was so glad that spring was near.

"And my daughter came in with a cold drink and my son came in with a light step and a laugh and a little song he had just heard, just a verse of it, a silly thing, but I shall never forget it as long as I live—it sort of sang me out of the black, whirling darkness where I'd been living, and the little man vanished forever—I hope.

"Pneumonia—double—and complications—that's what the little man was, but somehow, even yet, I feel that he lives somewhere in some disgusting hole and makes it his pernicious business to terrify poor souls in a fever."

Poor Mary, she really did hate that little man and she almost lost her faith in those who were all trying so hard to help her—just on the little man's account. I wonder if we often do that in life—about our illusions.

EARLY VACATIONS

Do you remember, Nellie, in our early, early years,
Those brief two-week vacations, with their laughter and their tears?
When with very little money we'd pack up and go away
To visit with relations who'd invited us to stay?
Then we took the babies with us and we thought it fine to be

Do you recall those suppers of the veal loaf and the ham,
And the pan of creamed potatoes and the jelly and the jam,
With the linen white and spotless and the glamour and the fuss,
With the special preparations which we knew were made for us?
And the aunties and the uncles saying every now and then:
"We won't think you like our victuals 'less you pass your plate again."

Those were good old family parties, when we talked the evenings through,
Telling all the joys and sorrows of the people that we knew;
All the failures and successes, and a little teary-eyed
We recalled the last sad moments of the loved ones who had died.
Then we thought it downright pleasure, and it was beyond a doubt,

Gone the uncles and the aunties who delighted to prepare
But I'm hoping when our children and their children older grow
They'll go visiting as we did in our youth of long ago.

Stars and Stripes

And there are some who refer to the New Orleans "civil war" as just a lot of "HUEY."
